Chief Office, St. Martin's-le-Grand, E.C. 2.

A House of Commons report in 244 states: "It is uncertain at what predicts period the Crown undertook to be the regular carrier of letters for its subjects." The first "Master of the Pouts" was appointed in 155, but the duty was not then undertaken as a remunicrative department of the Government. The Post Office is now one of the three great revenue-collecting departments, and while efficiently discharging its multifations duties, shows a large annual profit. It also receives large sums for duties and taxes on behalf of the Inland Revenue Berartment, for certain Hesenes for the Unytons and Excise Pepartment and the Centry Councils, and for National Insurance on behalf of the National Health neurance Commissioners and the Pourd of Trade. The Post Office also pays Widows', Orphans' and Old Agentical Commissioners and the Control Commissioners and the Pourd of Trade. The Post Office also pays Widows', Orphans' and Old Agentical Commissioners and the Control Commissioners and the Control Service in Execution and Allowances The Pours Post Office Sevings Bank in Sec. the Post Office Sevings Bank in Sec. the Post Office Sevings Bank in Sec. the Post Office Sevings Bank in Sec. the Post Office Sevings Bank in Sec. the Post Office Sevings Bank in Sec. the Post Office Sevings Bank in Sec. and the Post-Office Sevings Co., celly were estimated at £35,568,51 in 1295-32.

SPRIVY COUNCIL OFFICE, Whitehall, S.W. 2.
The Privy Council is of very ancient origin. A Council, the number of which was about twe leve, was instituted by Alfred, 895, and it discharged the functions of State now confined to members of the Calinte In the Middle Ages the Chief Advisers of the King who were permanently about him formed the Privy Council. Having become unwieldy, it was reconstituted in 2672. At present it consists of certain eminent persans whose names are given on pp. 254-5. Members of the Calinset must be Privy Council. The Council is summoned as such to act. "with others" upon the demise of the Crown, and many matters are referred by the Sovereign to Counciltuses of the Council, some of which are standing Committees, and others constituted to deal with particular cases, e.g., the Judicial Committee, the Board of Trade, g.s. The Lord President of the Council is the Fifth Great Officer of State, and as such is always a prominent member of the Cabinet.

The normal work of the Survey includes the preparation of geological maps and memoirs dealing with the general survey of the country and with various economic aspects of that survey. The Museum of Practical Geology conserves and exhibits rocks, minerals and cossils which afford evidence for the published records of the survey or illustrate that survey. It is also a function of the Museum to exhibit consonic minerals from all parts of the world, and especially Great Britan. The Airmen of Geological Survey Board, Dr. T. F. Sibly, Dec.

GTREASURY, Whitehall, S.W. z.

The Lord High Treasurer of England is the Third Great Officer of State, the office having been "in commissioner of the state interfall direct field. The Commissioner of the State interfall direct field. The Commissioner of the State interfall direct field. The Commissioner of the State interfall direct field. The Commissioner of the Exchequer, and some Junior Lords, with certain Secretaries and a staff of officials. The duties of the First Lord are mainly political, as also are those of the Parliamentary Secretary and the Junior Lords; the duties of the Chancellor of the Exchequer are mainly financial, in that he performs the ancient duties of the Under-Treasurer and, after agreement with the heads of the great spending departments, arranges for the great collecting departments to provide sufficient moneys to meet the needs of the year. The papers are laid before Parliament in the form of a Budget, which the Chancellor opens and expounds to the House these plans being accepted, modified, or rejected by the House in Scotland the principal local court is the Sheriff Court. The Judge Ordinary is the Sheriff-Substitute, and the Sheriff is an Appeal Judge. The jurisdiction of the Sheriff Court is both civil and criminal. In civil quest lons the jurisdiction is unlimited in regard to the money value of the cause. On the criminal side the Court has ogguzance of all serious crime with the exception of murder and three other charges, but the power of punishment is limited to fine and finarisament: it does not extend to censil servicule.

The Sheriff Clerk is the Clerk of the Sheriff Court, and his duties correspond nearly to those of a Registrar in the English Courts.

Prosecutions are conducted by Crown officials at the public expense; the Lord-Advosate and his deputes prosecute in the High Court; the Procurators-Fiscal in the Sheriff Court.

The Convener of the Sheriffs is Sheriff Alexander L. McGure, Aberden.

The Address of the Secretary of the Sheriffs-Pubsitives Assoc. is County Buildings, Ayr.

ADOPTION OF CHILDREN.

In England and Wales the adoption of children is regulated by the Adoption of Children Act, ross. An Order of Court is necessary to legalize the adoption, and the Act provides a number of safeguards. Adoption puts the child adopted practically on the same footing as a child born An Order of Court is necessary to legalize to the adopter in lawful wedlock, in all matters of custody, education and maintenance; but does not alter the child's rights in property of his real parents (e.g., on intestacy) nor give the child rights in respect of the adopter's property. The Act provides for a register of adopted children. Applications are made to the High colliders. Applications are made to the fluid Court (Chancery), County Court, or Magisteria; Bench. Orders will not usually be made for a man to be sole adopter of a girl, and applicant must be twenty-five years of age, or older. Scotland.—The Adoption of Children (Scotland) Act, 1930, makes similar regulations for Scotland as from Oct. 1, 1930, and directs the Registrar-General for Scotland to establish and maintain an Adopted Children Register. Appilications are made to the Court of Session, or the Sheriff Court within whose jurisdiction either the applicant or the child resides at the date of application.

BIRTHS (REGISTRATION).

(For Certificates, see p. 257.)

WHEN a birth takes place, personal information of it must be given to the local Registrar of Births and Deaths, and the register signed in his presence, by one of the following persons:

1. The father or mother of the child. If they fail, a. The occupier of the house in which the birth happened; 3. A person present at the birth; or, 4. The person having charge of the child. The duty of attending to the registration therefore rests firstly on the parents. The registration must be made within 42 days of the birth. Failure to do this without reasonable cause, involves liability to a penalty of forty shillings. If at the end of 4s days the birth is not registered, the Registrar may require any one of the above-mentioned persons to attend to register at a stated time and place. Failure to comply involves a penalty of forty shillings. The registration of a birth will be free when it takes place within 4s days (in Scotland at days), unless the Registrar is requested to attend at a residence or at the house where the child was horn, when he may claim a fee of one shilling After three months a birth cannot be registered except in the presence of the Superintendent Registrar, and on payment of fees, amounting to five shillings, to him and the Registrar After twelve months no birth can be registered without the Registrar-General's consent, and on payment of further fees, amounting to ten shillings. In Scotland, after the lapse of three months, it can only be registered on the authority of the County Sheriff. The regulation that no birth in England and Wales could be registered after seven years was revoked in 1988, but late registration cannot be allowed unless satisfactory evidence is supplied to the unless satisfactory evidence is supplied to the Registrar-General. The only legal proof of age and place of birth is afforded by the civil registers, which the law now requires to be made as above described. In districts under the Notification of Births Act, 2907 (as extended by an Act of 17218), notice of every birth must be given by the father, or person in attendance on the mother, to the district medical officer of health by post within 36 hours of the birth. This is in addition to the registration already mentioned.

A "Stillbirth" must be registered, accompanied by either a certificate of doctor or midwife, or a declaration that no doctor or midwife was present at the birth, and that the child was not born alive.

The re-registration of the birth of a person under the Legitimacy Act, 1926, is provided for in that Act (see p. s6r).

Birth at Sea. The master of a British ship must record any birth on board and send particulars to the Registrar General of Shipping.

Birth Abroad Consular Officers are authorised to register births of British subjects occurring in their districts.

BRITISH NATIONALITY.

The law as to British Nationality is mainly to be found in the British Nationality and Status of Allens Act, 2512, as amended by certain Acta passed in 1518 and 1523. It is important to notice that the Act of 1512—which defines a natural-born British Subject—does not affect the status of any person born before Jan. z. 1015.

The following are deemed to be British Sub-

r. Any person born within His Majesty's dominions and allegiance.

a. Any person born out of His Majesty's Dominions, before Jan z, 2025, whose father's father was born within His Majesty's Dominions, rather was born within His Majesty's Dominions, provided that the grandfather was, at the time of the father's birth, a Bittsh subject.

2.* Any person to whom a Certificate of Naturalization has been granted, or who has acquired British nationality by reason of annexation of territory, or by special Act of Parliament.

4. The wives (whatever their nationality of origin) of British subjects, save in certain cases where the man changes his nationality after marriage.

5. The children of naturalized British subjects born out of His Majesty's Dominions, provided that they comply with one of the following conditions :-

- (a) in the case of a child born before January
  - rst, rgrg,
    (i) if a Certificate of Naturalization has been granted to his father or his mother (being a widow) before January z, rgrg, and he has become resident with such father or mother (being a widow) in the United Kingdom before that date while
  - under age, or

    (ii) if a Certificate of Naturalization is granted to his father or his mother (being a widow) after January 1, 1918,
    and his name is included therein.
- (b) in the case of a child born after January z,
  - 1915, (i) if before his birth a Certificate of Naturalization had been granted to his father or birth a British subject, and who fulfils any of the following conditions—e.g., if either

(i) his father was born within His Majesty's allegiance; or

(ii) his father had a certificate of Naturalization; or (iii) his father had become a British subject by reason of any annexation of territory;

(iv) his father was, at the date of the birth, in the service of the ('rown; or

(v) his birth was registered at the British Consulate within one year or, in special cases, two years or, in the case of a person born on or after January z, zozs who would have been a British Subject if born before that date, within as months after August z, 1922.

A child of a British Subject is deemed to have been born within the allegnance if born anywhere where by treaty, &c. His Majosty exercises jurisdiction over British subjects.

A person whose British nationality depends upon his registration at a Consulate ceases to be a British Subject unless he asserts his nationality by declaration within a year after attaining az, and abandons any other nationality he may have acquired.

7. A person born on a British ship.

LOSS OF BRITISH NATIONALITY .- A British subject loses his British nationality :

(a) if by any voluntary or formal act he be-comes naturalized in a foreign country;

(b) if, in certain cases, he makes a declaration of alienage. These cases are:—

(i) where a person is a British subject by reason of birth in His Majesty's Dominions and allegiance or on board a British ship and is also by birth or becomes during minority a subject of any foreign State,

(ii) where a person is a British subject, but was born out of His Majesty's Dominions,

- (iii) where a Convention has been made between this country and any foreign State, to the effect that any subject of that state who has been naturalized as a British subject may divest himself of
- that Status;
  (c) if during his minority his father loses
  Brutish nationality in circumstances which involve the acquisition by the child of a new nationality:

(d) in the case of a woman, if she marries an alien;

(N.B. A woman who was originally a British subject and loses British nationality by mairiage with an alien does not regain British nationality on the death of husband or the dissolution of her marriage. If in such a case she desires to resume British nationality she must apply for a Certificate of Naturalization.)

(e) in the case of a person to whom a Certifi-cate of Naturalization has been granted if the Secretary of State revokes the

Certificate:

(f) if the territory of which he is an in-habitant is severed from the Crown; cf., e.g., the cases of the inhabitants of Hanover and Heligoland.

ACQUISITION OF BRITISH NATIONALITY.—An alien may acquire British nationality :--

(a) by special Act of Parliament;

(b) by the conquest, annexation, or cession of the territory of which he is an inhabitant;

(c) in the case of a woman, by marriage with a British subject, and

(d) by naturalization.

Naturalization —All Certificates of Naturalization granted in the United Kingdon between May 13, 1870, and December 21, 1914, were granted in accordance with the provisions of the Naturalization Act, 1870. And this Act did not secure that a Certificate granted in any part of the Empire should be valid throughout the Empire.

Under the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914, every person to whom a Certifi-cate of Naturalization is granted in accordance with its provisions after January 1, 1923, is a British subject, not only in that part of the British Empire where the Certificate is granted, but also in the United Kingdom and in any Dominion which has adopted the Act, and in any other British Possession.

Persons naturalized prior to January 1, 191 may, after that date, apply for a fresh Certificate of Naturalization under the new conditions.

In order to be eligible for the grant of such a Certificate in the United Kingdom, an alien must.

(a) during the eight years preceding his application have resided for not less than five years in His Majesty's Dominions (of which not less than one year ummediately preceding the application must have been spent in the United Kingdom) or have been for not less than five years in the service of the Crown;

(b) be of good character and have an adequate knowledge of the English language; and (c) intend to reside in His Majesty's Dominions or to enter or continue in the service of the Crown.

Instructions for the guidance of persons desiring to apply for a Certificate of Naturalization are supplied with the form of application for a certificate which may be obtained (price 6d.)

from H.M Stationery Office.

The fee payable to the Home Office in respect of the grant of a Certificate of Naturalization is fixed by the Government of the day, and is at present £10, of which £1 is payable on submission of the application and the remainder on the grant of the Certificate. The £1 payable on submission of the application is not returnable, whether or not a Certificate is granted.

N.B — In the case of a woman who was a British subject previously to her marriage to an alien, and whose husband has died or whose marriage has been dissolved, the above requirements, both as to residence and us to fee, are relaxed.

STATUS OF ALTENS -- Property may be held by an alien in the same manner as by a natural born British subject, but the title to such property does not confer any right on an alien to hold real property out of the United Kingdom, or qualify him for any franchise. Aliens are not entitled to be tried by a jury de medietats lingues, but are triable in the same manner as if they were natural-born

ADMISSION, SUPERVISION AND DEPORTATION OF ALIENS.—Under the Aliens Order, 1980, any alien coming from outside the United Kingdom must obtain the leave of an Immigration Officer to land in the United Kingdom, and such leave is refused in many cases, e.g., where the alien is without means, or (if he is seeking employment) is unable to produce a Permit issued by the Minister of Labour. Provision is also made (Article 6 of the Order) for the registration of resident aliens and (Article 12) for the deportation of aliens by order of the Secretary of State, which can be made on various grounds. The Aliens Order, 1920, was made under the Aliens Restriction Act, 1914, as amended and extended by the Aliens Restriction (Amendment) Act, 1919.

BUSINESS NAMES REGISTRATION.

REGISTRATION OF BUSINESS NAMES ACT, 1916.
This Act received the Royal Assent on 22 Dec., 1916, and its provisions were explained on pp. 414-415 of the 1921 "WHITAKER." The Office of the Registrar of Business Names is at Somerset House, W.C. 2.

CERTIFICATES

OF BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, OR DEATHS.

England and Wales—Certificates of Births, Deaths, or Marriages can be obtained at the General Register Office, Somerset House, on payment of fees amounting to y. yd., viz., v. for search, zs. 6d. for the certificate, and xd. for the stamp affixed thereto. (When application is made by post the charges are ys. xd.) They can also be obtained from the registration officer having the legal custody of the register book containing the entry of which a certificate is required. Certificates of marriages in churches of the Church of England can also be obtained from the meumbent of the church in which the marriage took place.

Certificates at reduced rates can be obtained for the purposes of certain Acts of Parliament Friendly Societies Act, 1896, Birth or Death, 12.; Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, and for purposes of Elementary Education, Birth, 6d; Savings Banks Act, 1887, Birth, Death, or Marriage, 12.; National Insurance Acts, 1912 and 1913, Birth, 6d., Marriage, 12.; Industrial Assurance Companies Act, 1896, and Trade Unions Amendment Act, 1896, death of child under 10 years of age, 12., but only from the local Paragraphs.

English Registers—Birth registration exists at Somerset House from 1837. An index to 2,000,000 earlier entries can be consulted at the Society of Genealogists at 5 Bloomsbury Square, London, W.C. z.

Scottish Registers of Births, Marriages, and Deaths.—Parish registers were instituted for these in 1521, but until the Registration of Births, &c. (Scotland), Act, 1854, they were not properly kept in many cases. Extracts may, however, be obtained from them on payment of 2s. 1d. for each entry, but to be valid evidence it must be shown that the registers from which the entries are taken were regularly kept. Lists of the old parish registers may be consulted in the offices of the Registers-General, H.M. General Register House, Edinburgh, or of local Registers These old registers are in the charge of the Registrar-General, and since 1854 local registers have been transmitted to him at stated periods. Registers up to the end of 1907 are now in his possession. There is a general index to the registers which may be searched on payment of 2s. A search of the index of a particular parish is 1s. A fee of 2s. is payable for a search of a particular parish.

An extract of an entry may be obtained on payment of ss. rd. The office of the Registrar-General is open on weekdays between ro a.m. and 4 p.m.

COPYRIGHT.

The law of copyright is contained in the Copyright Act, 1911, under which copyright subsists automatically, without registration, in every original literary, dramatic, musical and artistic work. The provisions of the Act were explained on the Act-act of the vors. "WHITAKER"

on pp. 413-416 of the 1921 "WHITAKER."

Registration at Statoners' Hall under the Copyright Act of 1842 terminated on Dec. 31, 1923, and in the following year the Stationers' Company established a new Register in which Books and Fine Arts can be registered. A copy has to be filed at Stationers' Hall and certified copies of the entries are issued, the fees being 5s for a Book, and 2s. 6d. for Fine Art; certified copies 5s. in either case. (Office open on Wednesdays only, 1x a.m. to 1x noon, and a to 4 p.m.) Such entries are of value in proving the existence of a work on a given date in the case of infringement.

DAYS OF GRACE,

Bills of Exchange or Promissory Notes, payable at any time after date, have three days of grace allowed; thus, a bill dated x Jan. at two months' date is not due until March 4. It abill or note is payable by instalments to be paid "punctually," this does not exclude the days of grace (Schaueren v. Morris, 3,7", L.B., 366). Bills drawn at sight, or on denand, must be paid on presentation without days of grace. In the United Kingdom, bills falling due on Sunday are payable the previous Saturday, and in England and Wales and in Ireland bills falling due on Good Friday or Christmas Day are similarly payable on the previous day. Bills falling due on Bank Holdays are payable the day after.

DEATHS

(For Certificates, see previous col.)

In England and Wales—When a death takes place, personal information of it must be given to the local Registrar of Births and Deaths, and the legister signed in his presence, by one of the following persons.—x A relative of the deceased present at the death, or in attendance during the last illness. If they fail, z. Some other relative of the deceased. In default of any relatives, 3. A person present at the death; or, the occupier of the house in which the death pappened. If all the above-named fail, 4. An imnate of the house, or, the person causing the body to be burred. Relatives present or in attendance are first required to attend to the registration. The registration must be made within live days of the death, or within the same time written notice of the death sent to the Registrar, accompanied by a certificate of the cause of death, signed by a registered medical practitioner, if any such attended the deceased during his last illness. If notice is sent, information must nevertheless be given and the register signed within fourteen days from the death. It is important that every death should be registered and a certificate of the clark should be registered and a certificate of the clark should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the register at a mental than the properties of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered and a certificate of the clark of the should be registered stated time and place. Failure to comply involves a penalty of forty shillings. The registration of a death is free of charge when it takes place within the above-mentioned periods, unless the Registrar is requested to attend at a residence, when a fee of one shilling is payable.

After twelve months no death can be registered without the Registrar-General's consent and on payment of fees amounting to ten shillings.

A body must not be disposed of until (a) either the Registrar has given a certificate to the effect that he has registered the death, or (a) until the Coroner has made a disposal order.

must record any death on board and send particulars to the Registrar-General of Shipping.

Death Abroad—Consular Officers are authorized to register deaths of British subjects occurring in their districts.

In Sotland, the rules of registration are similar, but (1) the death must be registered within 8 days, (2) the medical man concerned must give a certificate of death to the Registration terms of the Registration of Births, &c. (Sotland) Act. 1842, within 7 days; (3) the informant of a death receives from the Registrar This is given to the death has been registered. This is given to the undertaker, who delivers it to the keeper of the cemetery. Failure to comply is under penalty in all cases. CORONERS' INQUESTS.—Corone CORONERS' INQUESTS.—Coroners' inquests are held in cases of violent and unnatural deaths, such as the case of a person slam or drowned, or dying suddenly, and of any person dying in prison. Coroners do not obtrude into the houses of persons for the purpose of holding inquests, but are sent for by the peace officers, to whom it is the duty of those in whose houses violent or unnatural deaths occur to make immediate communication, whilst the body remains in the same situation as when the death occurred. Inquests are not to be held on Sunday. With a view to avoiding duplication of proceedings it is now provided that if some person has been charged before examining Justices with murder, manulaughter or infanticide, the Coroner shall adjourn his inquest until after conclusion of the criminal proceedings (Act of 1926, s. 20). On application by the Attorney-General the high Court may order a new inquest if the interests of justice so require. A jury is only essential in the five cases specified in the Coroners (Amendment) Act, reac, but may be summoned in any other case if the Coroner thinks fit. The jury is to be composed of not more than 11 nor less than 7 "good and lawful men" (sex disqualification now removed). If the minority is not more than two the Coroner may accept the verdict of the majority of the The jury is usually summoned from the jury. Ine jury is usuarry summoned from the householders residing in the neighbourhood in which the death took place. Any person summoned as a witness is housed to attend. The fine for defaulting juryssen or witness is any sum not exceeding £5. (See, generally, the Coroners Act, 1897, and the Coroners (Amendment) Act, 1995.)

cases of sudden death a private inquiry is held by the Procurator Fiscal (a Crown official who is the Public Prosecutor in criminal cases in every County, see p. sg2). The result of such inquiry is reported to the Lord Advocate. In the case of a death occurring in the course of an industrial employment, and in every case in which the Lord Advocate may so order, a public inquiry is held before the Sheriff and a jury.

BURIALS.

The duty of burial is incumbent on the deceased person's Executors (if any appointed); it is also a recognized obligation of the husband of a woman, and the parent of a child, also of a householder where the body lies. Funeral expenses of a reasonable amount will be repayable out of deceased's estate in priority to any other claims. Directions as to place and mode of burial are frequently contained in the de-ceased s will, or in some memorandum placed with private papers, or may have been communicated verbally to a relative. Consequently steps should be immediately taken to ascertain the deceased's wishes from the above sources. If Cremation is desired it is advisable for deceased to leave instructions in writing to that effect. Cremation may not take place if deceased has prohibited that form of burial. Under the Cremation Act, 1902, regulations have been made by the Home Secretary dealing fully with the cremation of a body, disposal of ashes, etc., and containing numerous essential safe-guards. A person may legally leave directions for the anatomical examination of his body. As to place of bmial-unless closed by order in Council—the parish churchyard is the normal burying place for parishloners, or any person dying in the Parish, but this will only nowadays apply in villages and the smaller towns. the more populous districts cemeteries have long been established either by the local coun-cil, or a private company, and burials will take place there in accordance with the Cemetery Regulations. For an exclusive right to a burial space in the churchyard a faculty is required from the Ecclesiastical Court. Foor persons may be buried at the public expense by a County Council or County Borough Council; and as to place of burish, &c., see Poor Law Act, 329, 82, 73 to 78. A person being found drowned on the sea shore is to be buried by the Overseers of the Parish. As to the necessity for Overseers of the Parish. As to the necessity for registration of a death before burial see Notes under Deaths, p. 257.

DIVORCE.

Preliminary — Matrimonial suits may be conveniently divided into three classes, viz. (2) those in which a declaration against marriage tions in which a declaration against marriage is sought; (a) those in which the marriage is sought to be upheld; and (3) those in which, the marriage being admitted, partial or complete divorce is sought.

(z) Nullity of Marriage.—Marriage is void ab

(1) Nultity of Merriage.—Marriage is void ab-inste if the parties were in the prohibited degrees of affinity, if it was bigamous, if there was no consent, if one of the parties was inasne, or if one of the parties was under the age of consent, i.e. x6—Age of Marriage Act, 1999, Inability to consummate a marriage may also be a ground for avoiding it. In such a case a degree of nultive may be obtained. decree of nullity may be obtained.

(a) Restriction of Conjugal Eights.—This is a In Scotland there is no Coroner. In ordinary form of relief generally sought by a spouse who has been deserted. Disobedience to a decree of restitution of conjugal rights, although two years have not elapsed, at once constitutes desertion; and such desertion, if coupled with the husband's adultery, whether committed before or after the decree of restitution, is a ground for granting to the wife a decree of dissolution of marriage.

(3) Judicial Separation and Divorce. - The third class of suit includes the suit for judicial separation (which does not dissolve a marriage), and the suit for divorce proper (which, if successful, dissolves the marriage contract altogether and leaves the parties at liberty to marry again). Either spouse may petition for judical separa-tion on the ground of adultery, or cruelty, or of desertion without cause for two years or upwards. In such a petition a husband may claim damages from the co-respondent. A decree of judicial separation is often made the ground of a petition for divorce A petitioner who has committed adultery which has not been condoned cannot obtain a judicial separation or a decree of restitution of conjugal rights unless there has been condonation. The fact that a petitioner has been guilty of cruelty or desertion does not, however, debar him from a decree of judicial separation on the ground of adultery unless his conduct has conduced to the adultery.

Dirorce.-Where partial or complete divorce is sought, relief can only be obtained upon proof of certain offences which fall under two heads, namely (z) those which are offences under ecclesiastical law, e.g., cruelty, adultery, and unnatural offences; (z) those which are offences by statute, e.g., incestuous adultery, bigainy with adultery, rape, and desertion.

If a husband seeks divorce, it is sufficient for him to prove the wife's adultery, in which case he may obtain damages from the adulterer. In the case of a wife it was formerly not sufficient the case of a wife it was formerly not summents that she prove mere adultery; but now, by an Act which came into force on July 18, 1923, she may petition for divorce on the ground that, since the mariage and the passing of the Act, her husband has been guilty of adultery. A wife can also obtain divorce if the husband has been guilty of bigamy with adultery, or rape or certain other criminal offences, or of adultery coupled with such cruelty as without adultery would have entitled her to a divorce a mensa et thore, or of adultery coupled with desettion. "Cruelty" is conduct of such a character as to have caused damage to life, limb, or health (bodily or mental), or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such danger. It is cruelty wilfully and recklessly to communicate a venereal disease : and a course of conduct calculated to break the spirit of the sufferer (generally the wife), continued until health breaks down or is likely to break down under the strain, is also a ground for relief.

If a wife gives birth to a child of which her husband could not possibly be the father, that is sufficient proof of adultery.

It is desertion in the legal sense if one party to a marriage, without the consent or against the will of the other, wilfully without cause or reasonable excuse makes the other live apart for two years or more. It is, however, a question of intention. Powell v. Powell (1922) para 298. Formerly the only remedy for desertion was a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights: but now desertion without cause may enable the deserted spouse to obtain a degree of judicial separation, and if coupled with adultery, a divorce.

When the decree will be refused .- A decree must be refused, even if the suit is undefended, if the allegations in the petition for divorce are not proved. There is no such thing in the Divorce Court as judgment by default. Other absolute bars to relief are (i) connivance at the adultery of the respondent; (ii) collusion, as where the initiation of the suit is procured by agreement or bargam (but this does not prevent a fresh suit being brought free from collusion); (iii) condonation, i.e. complete forgiveness which restores the status quo. Forgiveness, without restoration of the wife to her former position, cannot amount to condonation. (Crocker

v Crocker (1921), P. 15) There are also certain discretionary bars, as, e.g. where the petitioner has been guilty of unreasonable delay, or has been guilty of such vilful neglect or misconduct as has conduced to the adultery.

Intervention by King's Proctor.—At any time during the progress of a suit for dissolution or nullity of marriage, and before the decree mer is made absolute, the King's Proctor may intervene to show cause against making a decree absolute.

Decree Absolute, - Every decree of dissolution or nullity is in the first instance a decree nisi, or numby is in the lists. Instance a decree was, and is not made absolute until the expiration of six calendar months. The marriage subsists until the decree is made absolute. After that date either spouse may marry again; but a man may not marry the sister of his divorced wife whilst the divorced wife is alive. A divorced wife may call herself by her late husband's name. Persons who have been divorced may re-marry.

Children .- When a suit has been commenced, the children should not be removed from the person in whose custody they are at the time. Until a sult for judicial separation, nullty, or dissolution of marriage has been diamissed, the Court may make orders for the custody, maintenance, and education of children. Either spouse may make applications for access to the children.

Alimony.—A wife may in any cause file a petition for alimony (i.e., means of support) pending suit, provided evidence of the marriage is adduced. The right to alimony continues until there is a decision against the wife in the court of first instance. The amount may be agreed between the parties, otherwise onefifth of the joint incomes is generally allowed. An order for permanent almony may be obtained by a wife who has obtained a final decree of judicial separation.

Protection Orders -A deserted wife may apply to a court of petty sessions or to the Divorce Division for an order to protect any money which has come to her after such desertion against her husband and his creditors. Disobedience to the order renders a party retaining the property hable to restore it and to pay twice the value thereof.

Costs.—Where a sunt is about to be set down for hearing, the wife, if she has not sufficient separate estate, may obtain payment from her husband of a sum sufficient to cover her costs to date; and where a decree has been obtained against her for judicial separation on the ground of adultery, she may defend herself at his expense should he afterwards bring a snit for dissolution of marriage. If a suit be decided against a wife who has separate estate, she may be condemned in costs. A co-respondent may be ordered to pay the whole or any part of the costs of the proceedings.

SEPARATION BY AGREEMENT.

Husband and wife may agree, with or without consideration, to separate and live apart, but the agreement, to be valid, must be followed by an immediate separation. Although usually made by deed, a mere oral agreement is binding. If made, however, with a view to facilitating divorce proceedings it is void. A wife is not bound by a separation agreement if she was forced to make it by threats of violence. A clause which binds the husband to give up the custody of the children will be enforced, unless the Court is of opinion that it is not for their benefit. The agreement usually contains mutual covenants not to sue for the restitution of conjugal rights—a covenant by the husband not to molest the wife, and a covenant by the wife or her trustee to indemnify the husband against debts contracted by her during the separation. The remedy for a breach of the agreement is specific performance.

SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

When a husband has been guilty of assault or has deserted his wife, or has been guilty of persistent cruelty, or of wilful neglect to maintain her or her infant children, or where he is an habitual drunkard, the wife may obtain relief from a Court of Summary Jurisdiction. By an Act which came into force on Sept. 30, 7925, the following grounds for an application were added to those already existing (2) cruelty to her children, (b) that her husband insists on having manital relations while suffering from a veneral disease, (c) that he has compelled her to submit herself to prostitution. A husband may apply on the ground that the wife has been cruel to his children. Relief may also be obtained by a husband whose wife is an habitual drunkard. The Court may declare that the applicant is no longer bound to cohabit with the other spouse. Where a wife is the applicant, the legal custody of children under sixteen may be given to her, and the husband may be ordered to pay a weekly sum not exceeding £s. Where the husband applies, the custody of all the children of the marriage may be given to him, and the wife may be committed to an inebriates home. If the wife has been guilty of adultery, no order will be made on her application unless there was condonation; and if, having obtained an order, she commits adultery, the order may be discharged, but not if the court is of opinion that the husband conduced to the salutery by failing to make payment of the separation allowances. An order may be altered, varied or discharged any time on cause being shown. All applications for relief must be made within six months of the ground of complaint.

DOMESTIC SERVANTS.

"Domestic Servant" signifies, in law, a person employed in and about a residence, e.g., cook, butler, gardener, &c., but does not include, e.g., a governess or tutor. By general custom, one calendar month's notice, given at any time on either side, is required to terminate the contract of domestic service, but the Courte have recognised a custom for termination at the end of the first month if notice is given at the end of the first fortnight.

Dismissal without notice is justified in the event of wilful disobedience to a reasonable order, gross misconduct, dishouesty incompe-order, gross misonduct, disholecty, incompetence, or permanent incapacity. A "character," however unfavourable, is a privileged statement, so long as given without malicious intent. The Workmen's Compensation Acts impose serious liabilities upon an employer in the event

The Workmen's Compensation Acts impose serious liabilities upon an employer in the event of death or disablement of a servant from an accident in the course of employment, and prudent employers will protect themselves by a Policy, which can be obtained through the leading Insurance Companies for a small annual premuum.

THE FRANCHISE.

The Representation of the People (Equal Franchise) Act, 1988, considerably amended both the qualifications for the franchise and the mode of registration of electors, and assimilated the franchises for men and w men both for Parliamentary and Local Government elections.

PARLIAMENTARY.

The qualifications for the franchise are now the same for men and women. A person is entitled to be registered as a Parliamentary elector who is an years of age, and not subject to any legal incapacity; and

(a) Has the requisite residence qualification; or (b) has the requisite business premises qualification; or (c) is the husband or wife of a person having a business premises qualification.

having a business premises qualification.

Residence is the actual inhabitancy of premises,

.e., where a person's home is and where he sleeps. The residence must have been during the whole of the qualifying period, i.e., three months, in the constituency or in another constituency in the same Parliamentary borough or Parliamentary county. If not, it is essential that the residence should have been successive from a Parliamentary borough or Parliamentary county contiguous to that borough or county.
The Administrative County of London is treated as a Parliamentary borough.

Business premises means land or other premises of at least  $\mathcal{L}_{\text{Ro}}$  yearly value. The business premises must be occupied for the purpose of the business, profession, or trade of the person to be registered.

Universities.—A person of full age, and not subject to any legal incapacity, who has received a degree, is entitled to be registered as a Parliamentary elector for a University constituency; also a woman who has passed the final examination and fulfilled the conditions required of women by a University which did not at the time the examination was passed admit women to degrees

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The qualifications for the Local Government franchise are now the same for men and women. A person is entitled to be registered as a Local Government elector who is ar years of age, and not subject to any legal incapacity; and (a) is on the last day of the qualifying period occupying as comer or tenant land or premises in the electoral area; and (b) has during the whole of the qualifying period occupied as conner or tenant any land or premises in that area; if that area is not an administrative County or a County borough, then in any administrative County or County borough in which the area is situate; or (c) is the husband or wife of a person who is entitled to be registered in respect of premises in which the person entitled, and the husband or wife reside. There is also a service qualification for the Local Government franchise. A person (man or woman) who inhabits any dwelling-house by virtue of any office, service or employment is deemed to occupy the dwelling house as tenant and so obtains the Local Government franchise provided the dwelling house is not inhabited by the employer.

REGISTRATION.

Each parliamentary borough and Parliamentary county is an electoral registration area, and for each registration area, and for each registration area there is a Registration Officer. Normally, the Town Clerk is the Registration Officer for the Parliamentary Borough and the Clerk to the County Council for the Parliamentary County. It is the duty of the Registration Officer to compile the register of all persons entitled to vote as parliamentary electors or local government electors in his area. It is also his duty to comply with any directions given by the Secretary of State as to the arrangements to be made by the Registration Officer in carrying out the registration.
The electoral lists when prepared are published by the Registration Officer. A copy can always be inspected at his office, and generally at the chief post offices and other convenient places in the area, including Ciurch Porches, Public Libraries, and Local Council Offices The lists should be examined to see if the entries have been correctly made. If not, claims and objections may be made as by notice directed

The Index letters showing the nature of the qualifications of an elector are :-

R = Residence qualification

B = Business premises qualification.

O = Occupation qualification.

D = Qualification through wife's occupation.

NM = Naval or military voter.

FOR WOMEN. Rw = Residence qualification.

Bw = Business premises qualification.

Ow = Occupation qualification

Dw = Qualification through husband's occupation

RIGHT TO VOTE.

Every person registered as a parliamentary elector is entitled to vote at an election of a member to serve in Parliament. But at a General Election a person shall not vote for more than one constituency for which he or she is registered by virtue of a residence qualification, or for more than one constituency for which he or she is registered by virtue of other qualifications of any kind; which means that a person (man or woman) may, if qualified, lawfully vote twice at a General Election, but one vote must be in respect of a residence qualification, and each vote must be recorded in a different constituency.

ILLEGITIMACY AND LEGITIMATION. ENGLAND AND WALES.

A man may be summoned to petty sessions on the application of the mother of a bastard child, or by the Guardians of the Poor where the child and the Justices, on his being proved to be the father of the child, may make an order requiring him to pay for its maintenance and education a sum not exceeding sos, a week. The mother has the custody of her bastard children. No person is required as father of an illegitimate child to give information concerning the birth of such child, and the registrar is forbidden to enter in the register the name of any person as father of the child unless at the joint request of the mother and father. Such person is in that case required to sign the register, together with the mother. An unmarried domestic servant found to be encernte may be peremptorily dismissed without notice; but any attempt to examine without her consent a servant supposed to be encerate renders the employer liable to an action.

LEGITIMATION.—By the Legitimacy Act, 1986, which came into force on Jan. 1, 1987, where the parents of an illegitimate person marry or have married whether before or after that date, the marriage, if the father is at the date thereof domiciled in England or Wales, renders that person, if living, legitimate as from Jan. 1, 1927, or from the date of the marriage, which ever last happens This does not legitimate a person whose father or mother was married to a third person at the time when the illegitimate person was born

How to Secure Legitimacy - A person claiming that he, his parent, or any remoter ancestor has become legitimated, may petition the High Court under the Legitimacy Declaration Act, 1858, or the County Court for the necessary declaration.

Rights of Legitimated Persons to take Interest in Property.—A legitimated person may take property under an intestacy occurring after the date of legitimation, or under any disposition (e.g. a will) coming into operation after such date, as if he had been legitimate.

Rights and Duties of Legitimated Person .- He must maintain all persons whom he would be bound to maintain had he been born legitimate, and he is entitled to the benefit of any Act of Parliament which confers rights on legitimate persons to recover damages or compensation. The Act specially provides that nothing therein contained is to render any person capable of succeeding to or transmitting a right to any dignity or title.

Persons Legitimated by Extraneous Law-Broadly speaking, the Act provides that persons properly legitimated abroad shall be recognized as legitimated in England and Wales.

SCOTLAND.

Illegitimate Children (Scotland) Act, 1930.— The mother of an illegitimate child may obtain a decree of affiliation and aliment against the father. The process may be raised either in the Court of Session or the Sheriff Court, but usually is in the Sheriff Court. Where in any action of affiliation and aliment the Court finds that the defender is the father of the child, the Court shall in awarding any sum in name of inlying expenses, or in name of aliment, have regard to the means of the pursuer and the defender, and the whole circumstances of the case. The court may upon application by the mother or by the father of any illegitimate child, or in any action for aliment for an illegitimate child, make such becomes chargeable to the Union or Parish; order as it may think fit regarding the custody of such child and the right of access thereto of either parent, having regard to the welfare of the child and to the conduct of the parents and to the wishes as well of the mother as of the father and may on the application of either parent recall or vary such order. The obligation of the mother and of the father of an illegitimate child to provide aliment for such child shall (without prejudice to any obligation attaching at common law) endure until the child attains the age of sixteen years.

By Souts Law an illegitimate child is legitimated by the subsequent marriage of its parents provided there was no impediment to the marriage of the parents at the time of the conception of the child. Such legitimation is recognized by International Law so far as the laws of particular countries allow it. It is valid in England except that such a child cannot succeed to real estate in England on intestacy After the marriage of the parents such a child may be registered as legitimate by warrant of the Sheriff.

JURY SERVICE.

Preliminary.-The juries with which the public are most concerned are the grand juries; juries summoned to try causes in the High Court. at assizes and county courts; and those sum-moned to try criminal cases at assizes, the Old Bailey, and courts of Quarter Sessions, and coroners' juiles

Qualifications .- All natural-born subjects of the King and aliens domiciled for ten years or more, being men or women between 22 and 65, are liable to serve as jurors [

The sex disqualification was removed in roxe. and women are now liable to serve, but a judge may order that the jury shall be composed of men only or of women only, or may, on an application made by a woman, grant her exemption in respect of any case by reason of the nature of the evidence to be given or of the issues to be tried.

The qualification of a juroi is a property one that is to say, he or she must be a person who owns property or pays rates. A householder or shopkeeper in the City of London who owns personal estate worth £100; a resident in a county or borough owning £100 a year in real estate or reut charge, or £201 leaseholds, or a householder in a county or borough occupying accounty whose persons the support of the property of the second property whose net annual value is assessed at not less than £30 a year in Middlesex and the County of London, or £30 in other counties, and occupiers of houses with not less than fifteen windows, are all compellable to serve as jurors

unless exempted or disqualified

Exemptions and Disqualifications — Aliens (subject as above), felons, lunatics, imbeciles, deaf or blind persons are disqualified from serving on juries, while the fullowing classes of persons (amongst others) are exempt—peers, members and officers of both Houses of Parliament, clergymen and priests, ministers of any congregation of Protestant dissenters and Jews, whose meeting place is duly registered, judges, barristers, solictors (if practising), officers of the supreme court, magistrates, clerks of the peace, sheriffs' officers and servants of such officers, justices of the peace, members of local bodies, governors of prisons and gaolers, super-intendents, &c, of lunatic asylums, doctors and pharmaceutical chemists (if actually practising), dentises, officers and men in Navy, Army, Air and Territorial Forces, licensed pilots, postal, custom and inland revenue servants.

Special exemption.—A judge, and, by virtue of S. 3 of the Juries Act, 1922, the sheriff, may for good reason excuse attendance on any particular jury.

Jury Lists.—Lists of juries are now prepared in accordance with the Juries Act. xxxx. the names of persons apparently qualified as Jurors being so marked on the Electors Lists (exhibited at Town Halls, Public Libraries, in church porches, &c.). Persons who deem them-selves to be entitled to be exempted should communicate with the registration officer, for all whose names appear on the Jury List as flually settled are liable to serve.

Grand Juries .- The function of the grand jury is to make presentments on oath to judicial hodies or personages, mainly of accusation against persons against whom criminal proceedings are pending. The jurors have to say in effect whether there is a prima facie case against the accused, against whom an indictment has been prepared, and if they are satisfied of this they find "a true bill", if not, they "ignore the find "a true bill", if not, they "ignore the bill" and the accused is discharged

Juries in Criminal and Civil cases. - An accused person against whom a true bill has been found is trued by a "jury sworn." A "panel" of jurors are summoned to attend the court on a particular day, and it is from amongst them that the jury who are to try the prisoners are selected at random (an interesting note on the selection of jurors will be found in Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 18, p. 246). In a criminal case the prisoner has a right of challenge which is of two kinds—a challenge to the array—i.e., the whole number of jurors summoned (which is so rare that it need not be further considered) and a challenge to the poll, i.e., to individual jurors, which may be peremptory or for cause. Peremptory challenge, or challenge without retemptory charlenge, or charlenge without cause, exists only as of right in treason and felony, and the prisoner can only challenge a limited number without reason. In the exercise of this right prisoners frequently object to the women on the jury. "Challenge for cause" sometimes takes place on the ground that the proposed juror is a peer or is alleged to have committed some crime which makes him miamous.

Except upon trials for murder, treason, and treason felony juries after being sworn may separate, e.g., for lunch and at night. The verdict must be given in open court in the presence of all the jurors, and in cases of treason and felony in the presence of the defendant. It must be unanimous, except that in civil cases the parties may agree to take a majority verdict.

Special Juries. - Special Jurors are selected from persons having larger property qualifica-tions, e.g., the occupier of dwelling house in a large town rated at not less than £100. Trial is generally by Common Jury, but in any cause or matter at Assizes or in the High Court an order for a Special Jury may be obtained in certain cases.

Payment of Jurors .- A Special Juror is entitled to a fee of one gumea for each case in which he is sworn to act, whereas a Common Jury is only entitled to is, on each cause tried in the High Court or a County Court; and on Circint, 8d. In Criminal Cases the jury is en-titled to and, in fact, receives nothing. At Inquests, held before Coroners, the jurors are entitled to such fee as the local authority may parmit the coroner to pay.

A juror is not accountable for, nor will any action lie against him, in respect of anything said or done by him in discharge of his office. If he fail to appear in the High Court or at assizes when duly summoned he may have to pay a fine of £ 10, while non-appearance at a county court may involve a fine of £5.

Coroners' Juries. - (See Deaths - Coroner's

LEGAL AID FOR THE POOR.

Civil Cases.

A system now exists for giving legal aid to poor persons in civil proceedings—including divorce—administered by the Law Society, Chancery Lane, W.C a, and through various Provincial Law Societies. Under this system committees are now established throughout England and Wales. Anyone desiring this form of aid may apply to the nearest "Poor Persons Committee" for a Poor Persons Certificate, and if this is granted a Solicitor and Counsel will be allotted to act without remuneration The Certificate can be given if the poor person is not worth £50 (excluding wearing apparel and trade tools) and the usual income does not exceed £2 a week In special curcumstances above figures may be £100, and £4 a week. The Committee may require the poor person to deposit a sum not exceeding £5 (in the first instance) to cover out-of-pocket expenses of the conducting solicitoi.

Divorce proceedings under the Poor Persons system may be commenced at the Divorce Registry in London or in one of the numerous District Registries in the Provinces now authorised for the purpose, and the trial or hearing may be in London or at the Assizes at one of the many towns at which Divorce business may now be taken under the Rules of the Supreme Court.

Criminal Cases.

The Poor Prisoners Defence Act, 1930, provides for free legal aid in criminal proceedings in specified cases. On trial for an Indictable offence the person charged may have free legal aid, with Solicitor and Counsel, if Justices or Judge of trial court grant a Defence Certificate. If the person's means are insufficient, such Certificate may be granted in cases where desirable, and must be given for a murder charge. In Courts of Summary Jurisdiction, assuming manificient means, a Defence Certificate may be granted to a person if considered desirable to do so owing to gravity of charge or exceptional circumstances

Scotland.—In every town there are Solicitors for the Poor, and in the Court of Session there are Counsel for the Poor, all of whom act gratuitously. Any class of litigation may be gratuitously. Any class of litigation may be undertaken for poor persons, but the operation of the "Poor's Roll" is chiefly important in matrimonial and bastardy cases. Legal services are rendered free of charge, and no Court dues to the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control are payable. The means that preclude a person from the benefit of the Poor's Roll are not fixed, and each application depends on its own circumstances. The Poor's Roll was estabhahed in 1484.

MARRIAGES.

BY BANNS OR LICENCE.

BANNS OF MARRIAGE. - The Marriage Act. so Geo. II. c. 33, prescribes audible publication according to the rubric, on three Sundays preceding the ceremony, after the Second Lesson. Where the parties reside in different parishes, the banns must be published in both, the minister giving his certificate of the same to be hauded to the minister of the parish where the marriage takes place. Under the Marriage Measure 1930, hanus may be published and marriage solemnized in the parish church which is the usual place of worship of the persons to be married or either of them although neither of nutries of either of them such oursels, but this publication of banns is in addition to any other publication required by law. The law provides specially for the case where one of the parties resides in Scotland, the publication being then in the parish church. In like manner in Scotland the publication takes place in the parish church, in whatever church the parties are married — It may be noted that, by Scottish law only, omission to publish the banns does not invalidate the marriage, because it would still stand as an irregular marriage carried out by consent before witnesses (see sub-tit., "Marriages in Scotland," post). The names by which the parties are known are sufficient for publication of banns, so that a variance from the strict baptismal name is not important. But where wrong names are designedly given, for the purpose of concealment or otherwise, the case is different, and the marriage may be null and void (Midgeley v. Wood, 4 Sw. & Tr 267) Where a wrong and fraudulent name is given by one party only, and the other party is innocent, the validity of the marriage is not affected.

The Bishop may license a Chapel of Ease for the celebration of marnages, but where a district has been assigned to a chapel, and it becomes a vicarage, or "ecclesiastical parish," the option ceases, and the banus must be proclaimed and marriage celebrated therein, and not in the "mother church" or that of the civil parish

If three months be permitted to elapse from the last time of publication, the banns become useless, and the parties must either obtain a licence, or submit to the republication of banns The minister ought to satisfy himself that the parties are of full age, or that the consent of parents is obtained, and it is usually on the score parents is obtained, and it is usually on the score of insufficiency of age that banns are "forbidden." By the Act 6 & 7 Will IV. c 85, a marriage may be performed in church on the superintendent registrar's certificate without banns, provided that the incumbent's consent is obtained. One of the parties must be resident within the Ecclesiastical parish of the church in which the marriage is to take place

MARRIAGE LICENCES are of two kinds-(x) the Common or Ordinary Licence grantedby the Archbishops and Bishops, through their Surrogates, for marriage in any church or chapel duly licensed for marriages, (a) the Special Licence granted by the Archbishop of Canterbury for marriage at any time or in any place on good reason being shown (see p. 364). The Act of 18a3 is severe on the clergy, making it a felony for any clergyman to marry the parties in the absence of banns or licence; and every Registrar or other person who knowingly unduly solemnizes a marriage is also guilty of felony. By a sub-sequent alteration in the law, the hours for marriage were extended, and they are now from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

GENERAL NOTES.—The minister should be careful that there are two or more witnesses present, and that two witnesses attest the entries in the register books, which are kept in duplicate.

All civil jurisdiction over marriage was taken away from the Ecclesiastical Courts by the Divorce Act of 1857. An incumbent may, under Section 56 of this Act, refuse to marry a divorced person whose marriage has been dissolved for his or her adultery, but must allow another clergyman of the diocese to perform the service.

A MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE is nothing more than a copy of the entry in the church register, and the customary fee is 28. 6d, and a stamp duty of rd. Searches in the register-books may be made on payment of small fees, viz., rs. for a single year, and 6d additional for every other year. There are small fees, regulated by custom, on the certifi-cate given of banns in one parish for marriage in another. MARRIAGE FEES are not uniform, and of excessive there is power with the Diocesan Chancellor to moderate them. With those who are in a position to afford it, it is usual to pay a guinea to the clergyman, and 5s. to the clerk; and the usual fees are paid although a strangerclergyman be invited to perform the service.

INFANTS cannot be lawfully married without the consent of certain persons. The law on the subject is to be found in the Guardianship of Infants' Act which came into force on Sept. 30, Where both parents are living both must consent; where one is dead, the survivor; or if there is a guardian appointed by the deceased, the guardian and the survivor. The Age of Marriage Act, 1929, prohibits any marriage where either party is under 16 years of age.

MARRIAGE LICENCES FOR ESTABLISHED CHURCH

MARRIAGE LICENCES can be obtained in London by application at the Faculty Office (23 Knight-rider St., Doctors' Commons, E C.4), at the Vicar-General's Office (1 The Sanctuary, Westminster, S.W.z), and at the Bishop of London's Diocesan Registry (1 Dean's Court, Doctors' Commons, E.C.4), by one of the parties about to be married. In the country they may be obtained at the offices of the Bishops' Registrars, but licences obtained at the Bishop's Drocesan Registry only enable the parties to be married in the diocese in which they are issued; those procured at the Faculty Office are available for London and all England and are available for London and all Engiand and Wales; those procured at the Vicar-General's Office (hours in both offices to to 4; Saturdays to to 1) are available for London and all England, except the Province of York. No instructions, either verbal or in writing, can be received, except from one of the parties. Affidavits are prepared from the personal instructions of one of the parties about to be married, and the licence is delivered to the party upon payment of fees amounting to thirty shillings, in addition to the cost of stamp, ros. od. No premous notice is required and the licence is available as soon as it is issued. The cost of licences through a clerical surrogate in the country varies, according to the discess, from £z zgs. to £z zss. 6d. By the 4th George IV. c. 76, it is enacted, in order to avoid fraud and collusion in obtaining licences for marriage, that before any such licence be granted one of the parties shall make a declaration, on oath, that there is no legal impediment to the intended marriage; and also that one of such parties hath had his or her usual place of abode for the space of fifteen days immediately preceding the issuing of the licence within the boundary of the parish church, or the district parish in the church of which the marriage is to be solemnized.

It may be added that in the country there may generally be found a parochial clergyman who is also a surrogate, before whom the above-mentioned aison surrogate, before whom the above-mentioned affidavit hay be taken, and whose office it is to deliver the licence personally to the applicant. (In some parts of the country it is necessary for the surrogate to procure the licence from the Bishop's registry.)

SPECIAL MARRIAGE LICENCES (FOR ESTABLISHED CHURCH).

SPECIAL LICENCES are granted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, under special circumstances, for marriage at any place with or without previous residence in the district, or at any tune, &c.; but the reasons assigned must meet with his Grace's approval. Application must be made to The Faculty Office, 23 Knightrider Street, Doctors' Commons, E C. 4 (tel., 6834 Central). Fees for licence stamp, &c., £25.

BEFORE A REGISTRAR AND IN NON-CONFORMIST BUILDINGS.

Marriages can take place in a District Register Office or in a Nonconformist building registered for marriages, (z) by Certificate, (a) by Licence. Notice of such marriages must be given personally Notice of such marriages must be given personally to the Superintendent Registrar, a Registrar of Births and Deaths, a Registrar of Marriages, or the deputy of such officer. A marriage at a register office takes place in the presence of the Registrar of Marriages and the Superintendent Registrar; a marriage at a registered building takes place in the presence of the Registrar of Marriages, unless it is had under the provisions of the Marriage Act, 1898, respecting which see below. In each case the presence of at least two witnesses is necessary.

NOTICE OF MARRIAGE BY CERTIFICATE.

If both parties reside in the same registration district, they must both have resided there for seven days before the notice can be given. It may then be given by either party.

If the parties reside in different registration districts, notice must be given by each to a registration officer in the district in which he or she resides, and the preliminary residential qualification of seven days must be fulfilled by each before the notice can be given.

NOTICE OF MARRIAGE BY LICENCE.

One notice only is necessary, whether the par-ties live in the same or in different registration districts, and either party may give the notice.

If both live in the same district, one of them must have lived there for fifteen days before

If they live in different districts, and both have fulfilled the necessary residential qualification, notice may be given in either district. If one only has fulfilled the qualification, the notice must be given in the district in which the residence has been fulfilled, and the other party must be resident in England or Wales when the notice is given.

The notice contains particulars as to names, ages, residence, length of residence, and the building in which the marriage is to take place. It also contains a declaration that there is no legal impediment to the marriage, and, in the case of minors, that the consent of the person whose consent to the marriage is required by law, has been duly given. A person making a false declaration renders himself or herself hable to prosecution for perjury.

ISSUE OF CERTIFICATE (WITHOUT LICENCE).

After the lapse of twenty-one clear days from the date of the entry of the notice in the noticebook, the Superintendent Registrar may, provided no impediment is shown, issue his certificate for the marriage, which can then take place at any time within three calendar months from the date of the entry of the notice.

ISSUE OF CERTIFICATE AND LICENCE.

After the lapse of one week-day (not Christmas Day or Good Friday) from the date of entry of the notice, the Superintendent Registrar may, provided no impediment is shown, issue his certificate and licence for the marriage, which can then take place on any day within three calendar months from the date of entry of the

(a) Marriage by Licence :- The certificate and licence of the Superintendent Registrar of the district in which the notice is given.

PLACE OF MARRIAGE

The marriage must generally take place at a building within the district of residence of one of the parties, but if the usual place of worship of either is outside the district of his or her residence, it may take place in such usual place of worship, provided that it is not more than online distant from the boundary of the distant in which the notice is given; and if there is not within the district of residence of either party a registered building within which marriages are solemnized according to the rites and ceremonies of the religious denomination to which the parties belong, it may take place in a registered building of the required denomination in the nearest district.

A marriage which has been duly celebrated in a register office in Ireland may be proved by the certificate of such marriage (Guillet v. Guillet, 27 T.L.R 416).

MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

The marriage must be solemnized between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m , with open doors. Each of the parties must declare as follows:-"I do solemnly declare that I know not of any lawful impediment why I, A. B., may not be joined in matrimony to C. D."; and each of the parties must say to the other, "I call upon these persons here present to witness that I, A, do take thee, C, D., to be my lawful wedded wife for husband!" A wedding-ring may be, and is generally, used at a marriage at a register office.

MARRIAGE ACT, 1898.

The presence of a Registrar of Marriages is not necessary at marriages at Nonconformist registered buildings which have adopted the provisions of this Act. The Act (which does not apply to Scotland or Ireland, or to marriages according to the usages of the Jews or of the society of Friends) provides for the appointment of an "authorised person" (a person, usually the minister or an official of the building certified by the trustees or governing body as having been duly authorised for the purpose) who must be present at and must register the marriage. If the presence of a Registrar is required at a marriage at a building at which the provisions of the Act have been adopted, the fact must be stated when notice of the marriage is given, and the consent of the munster or trustees to the Registrar's attendance must be obtained

The parties must at some time during the ceremony make the following declarations.

"I do solenmly declare that I know not of any lawful impediment why I, A. B., may not be joined in matrimony to C. D"

Also each of the parties must say to the other —
"I call upon these persons here present to witness that I, A B, do take thee, C, D, to be my lawful wedded wife [or husband]"; or, in hen thereof -- "I, A. B., do take thee, C. D., to be my wedded wife for husband!

NAVAL MARRIAGES ACT, 1908.

This Act provides that any officer, seaman, or marine borne on the books of one of His Majesty's ships who wishes to marry may, if the marriage 18 to take place at a register office or a Nonconformist registered building, give notice to his commanding officer, who, after the lapse of twenty-one clear days, can issue a certificate for the marriage. The other party must give notice in the usual way to a registration officer in the district in which she resides.

If the marriage is to take place at a church of the Church of England, the chaplain or commanding officer must publish the banns on board the ship on three successive Sundays: he can then issue a certificate of publication of banns. The banns must also be published in the church in which the marriage is to take place.

No marriage by licence can take place under this Act.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION RESPECTING MARRIAGES.

Parties should be married in the name in which they are generally known.

A marriage may take place at a registered building before a Registrar without religious cere-mony if the consent of the trustees is obtained.

If parties who have been married at a register office desire to go through a religious ceremony at a church, they may do so on production to the incumbent of a certificate of the register office marriage, but this ceremony is not recorded as a marriage in the register books.

A divorced person desiring to marry again in a register office or registered building must give notice to the Superintendent Registrar, to whom a copy of the divorce decree must be produced. In Wales, and in places where the Welsh tongue in wates, and in places where the welsh longing is used, the declaration and contracting words may be said in Welsh, as provided by Section 33 of the Marriages and Registration Act, 1837.

If both parties are Jews, they must give notice to a registration officer in the usual way, and may marry according to their usages in a synagogue or private dwelling-house at any hour; the marriage must be registered by the secretary of the synagogue of which the man is a member.

If both parties are members of the Society of Friends (Quakers), or if, not being in membership, they have been authorised by the Society of Friends to solemnize their marriage in accordance with its usages, they must give notice to a registration officer, and may be married in a Friends' meeting house; the marriage must be registered by the registering officer of the Society appointed to act for the district in which the meeting-house is situated. The presence of a Registrar of Marriages is not necessary at such marriages of Jews or members of the Society of Friends.

MARRIAGE IN ENGLAND OR WALES WHEN ONE PARTY LIVES IN SCOTLAND OR IRELAND.

Notice for a marriage by a Superintendent Registrar's certificate in a register office or registered building may be given in the usual way by the party resident in England. As regards Scotland, the party there, after regards southand, the party there, after a residence of fifteen days, should apply to the session clerk to publish banns; as regards Ireland, the party there, after a residence of seven days, must give notice to the District Registrar of Marriages. Notice cannot be given for such marriages to take place by the licence of the Superintendent Registrar.

Marriage of such parties may take place in a church of the Church of England after the publication of banns, or by Ecclesiastical licence.

MARRIAGES OF BRITISH SUBJECTS ABROAD.

British subjects may contract a valid marriage in a foreign country provided they conform to the provisions of the Foreign Marriages Act, 1802. One of the parties to the marriage only need be a British subject.

Where a marriage according to the local law of a foreign country is valid by English law, then, before the marriage is soler nized in that country under the Act, the marriage officer as defined by the Act must be satisfied—

(a) That both parties are British subjects; or,

(b) If only one of the parties is a British subject, that the other is not a subject or citizen of the country; or, (c) If only one of the parties is a British subject and the other a subject or citizen of the country, that sufficient facilities do not exist for the solemnization of the marriage in the foreign country in accordance with the law of that country; or,

(d) If the man is a British subject and the woman a subject or citizen of the country, that no objection will be taken by the authorities of the country to the solemnization of the marriage under the Act.

In the case of any marriage under the Act where the woman is a British subject and the man a foreigner, the marriage officer must be satisfied-

(a) That the marriage will be recognized by the law of the country to which the foreigner belongs; or,

That some other marriage ceremony in addition to that under this Act has taken place, or is about to take place, between the parties, and that such other ceremony is recognized by the law of the country to which the foreigner belongs; or, (c) That the leave of the Secretary of State has been obtained.

The marriage must be solemnized by or before marriage officer as defined by the Act.

It is necessary for one of the parties to the intending marriage to sign a notice stating the name, surname, profession, condition, and resi-dence of each of the parties, and whether each of the parties is or is not a minor, and to give the notice to the marriage officer within whose district both of the parties have had their residence not less than one week then next preceding, and the notice must state that they have so resided.

If the parties reside in different districts, such notice must be given to the marriage officer of the district before whom the intended marriage is to be solemnized, by the party who has resided for a period of not less than one week within the district of such marriage officer

If one of the parties resides (a) in the United Kingdom, or (b) in a Colony or India (a) notice must be given in like manner as if the party so resident were about to be married in that part of the United Kingdom in which he or she readies, and in England or Ireland must be given to the superintendent registrar or registrars, and in Scotland must be given by proclamation of banns, and (b) such notice must be given by the party dwelling in such Colony or in India as may be provided by any law of that Colony or of the Governor-General of India in Council, or in like manner as if the party were about to be married in that place.

If the non-resident party has dwelt in the district of a marriage officer in a foreign country notice must be given by that party in like manner as if the marriage were to be solemnized by or before such marriage officer, or if the place in a foreign country at which the non-resident party has dwelt is not within the district of a marriage officer the notice may be given to any person authorised by the Secretary of State to receive such notices. Where neither party has resided for a period of not less than one week within the district of the marriage officer before whom the intended marriage is to be solemnized, and (a) the marriage cannot conveniently be solemmzed at the place where either of the parties has had his or her usual place of abode, or (b) the permission of the Secretary of State has been obtained, notice must be given by each of the parties in the place where he or she has had his or her usual place of abode for a period of not less than one week immediately preceding the giving of such notice in the prescribed manner, and a certificate of the giving of such notice obtained.

If the Secretary of State is satisfied that for some good reason the party has not been able to give the required notice and that the marriage is not clandestine and that adequate notice has been given, he may permit the marriage to be subconvized.

Before the marriage is solemnized each of the parties must make on oath

- (a) That he or she believes that there is no impediment;
- (b) that both the parties have had their usual place of residence in the district of the consular marriage officer for three weeks immediately preceding, or if they have not both resided there during three weeks then that one of them has so resided, and stating the place where the party who has not so resided has within three months immediately preceding had for three consecutive weeks his or her usual place of shode, and the notice that has been given in that place, or, if neither party has resided there, stating the place or places where each party has within three months immediately preceding had for three weeks his or her usual place of abode, and the notices that have been given in those places.

After the expiration of 14 days after the notice of an intended marriage has been entered, then if no lawful impediment to the mairiage is shown, and the mairiage has not been forbidden in manner provided by the Act, the mairiage may be solemnized. A consular officer holdinga wairant for a district can only solemnize a marriage at his own official house. Patties residing within a consular district who may wish to be married under the Act must go to the consular officer provided with a warrant for that district; two or more witnesses are required to be present.

The following fees for marriages under the Foreign Marriage Act are payable to His Majesty's Government:—

For certificate by a Marriage Officer of notice having been given and posted up, in case of one of the parties residing outside the consular district in which the marriage is to take place.......

Marriages may be solemnized 8 a m to 3 p.m. No religious ceremony is required, but any form according to the creed of the contracting parties may be used. The presence of the duly authorised Marriage Officer is, however, necessary to render the marriage valid. If the ceremonal be that of the Church of England, it can only be performed by a clergyman of that Church.

Marrages solemnized under the Foreign Marrage acts are legal by English law when both parties are British subjects, and also when only one of them is a British subject, but such marriages are not necessarily valid out of His Majesty's dominions. In cases where one of the parties is a subject of the country where the marriage is proposed to take place, or of a third country, the party in question must previously comply with the requirements of the marriage law of the country to which he or she belongs, so far as it may be possible to do so, in order to render such marriage also valid by the law of that country.

In Germany and Switzerland marriages by any foreign consular officer are, in the absence of any treaty stipulations, strictly prohibited.

A marriage which would not be valid in England would be equally invalid if solemnized in an embassy, legation, or consulate abroad. For instance, marriages within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity or affinity would not be valid.

Marriages may also be solemnized under the "Foreign Marriages Act, 1892," before the commanding officer of any of lits Majesty's ships on a foreign station provided he be of such rank and of such vessel as is for the time being authorised for that purpose by Admiralty instructions.

MARRIAGES ABROAD WITH FOREIGNERS ACCORDING TO FOREIGN LAW.

ACT OF 1906 — Under the Marriage with Foreigners Act, 1906, any Britsh subject desiring to be married in a foreign country to a foreigner ground for the law of the country may, after giving notice of the marriage, obtain a certificate from the registrar that there is no legal impediment to the marriage. In order to obtain the certificate, the rules set out in the schedule to the Act must be complied with. Any persons may enter an objection to a certificate, the validity of which will be decided by the Registrar-General.

A marriage by repute which is valid by the law of the domicile in a foreign country will be recognised as valid by the English courts (re Green Noyes v. Pitkin, 1909, as T.L.B. 222).

MARRIAGES IN SCOTLAND.

According to the law of Scotland marriage is a contract which is completed by the mutual consent of parties. No formalities are required and no consent of parents or guardians is neces-sary. It can be contracted by a male over 14 years of age and a female over zz. Marriages may be "regular" or "irregular."

A regular marriage is one which is celebrated by a Minister of religion after due notice by the publication of banns or publication by the Registrar. Any Minister of any denomination (including a person officiating at a Quaker wedding) who performs the ceremony is reckoned to be a minister of religion. It must be performed before two witnesses and one of the parties must have resided in Scotland for at least 1g days before the ceremony. Public pro-clamation is made by (a) banus or (b) notice by the Registrar. Banns must be proclaimed in the parish church of both parties. It is ordered that the proclamation of banns should be made three times, but by immemorial practice pro-clamation on one Sunday is sufficient. The Clerk of the Kirk Session of the Parish takes in notices of hams and issues certificates of proclamation. The fee for proclamation may not exceed as 6t. A certificate of proclamation of banns is only valid for three months. Under the Marriage Notices (Scotland) Act, 1876, a notice posted up in a conspicuous or accessible place on the board or outer wall of the Registrar's office is equivalent to the proclama-tion of banus. Exhibition is made for seven consecutive days. Objection may be made within other seven days. If no objections are lodged the Registral issues a certificate : fee, 18 6d Such certificate of publication is only valid for three months. Under the Naval Marriages Act, 1908, hauns may be published on board one of His Majesty's ships where an officer, seaman or Marine on the ship's books wishes to contract a marriage in Scotland. A declaration under the Marriage Notices (Scotland) Act already referred to may also be filled up and the officer commanding the ship may grant a certificate.

Irregular Marriages are survivals of modes of marriage which were general throughout Europe in mediaval times, Scotland having disregarded the decrees of the Council of Trent invalidating irregular mairiages; Scotland following the ancient Cauon law. These marriages may be contracted in three ways: (a) by exchange of consent before two witnesses (called in legal language per verba de presenti); (a) by promise of marriage followed by intercourse on the faith of the promise (called marriage by promise, subsequents copula): the promise, however, can only be proved by the writing or the oath of the party when action is brought; (3) by constant living together as husband and wife (called marriage by habit and repute), i.e., the general repute of the neighbourhood supported by consistent conduct. Marriage by the first mode is only valid if one of the parties has been resident in Scotland for ar days before the contract is entered into. (This is the result of legislation and not part of the common law of Scotland.) "Gretna Green" marriages were abolahed in 1856 by the Act 19 and so Victoria, Chap. 96. Marriages thus contracted may be registered if the parties appear before the Sheriff with their witnesses and petition for registration within three months. On the Sheriff granting warrant the Registrar registers the marriage for a fee of 5s. rd. The other two forms of marriage before they are held to be valid must be declared by a decree in the Court of Session.

Marriage with a foreigner may be solemnized regularly if one of the parties has a residential qualification and provided that one party has resided in Scotland for ar days and the minister agrees to dispense with the proclamation of banns in the case of the foreigner. Marriage of a Scottish person with a foreigner, or marriage of two foreigners, may be contracted irregularly if one or other of the parties has resided in Scotland for az days.

MOTOR LAW.

The modern Charter of Motor Law is the Road Traffic Act 1930 and Regulations made thereunder by the Minister of Transport. This Act not only consolidated the law by repealing some thirty earlier Acts, but made numerous amendments and new provisions to keep abreast with the rapid development and modern universal use of motor vehicles.

Some of the new features are Compulsory Insurance against Third-party risks; abolition of speed limit for ordinary private car; publica-tion of a "Highway Code"; physical fitness for driving licence. The following provisions of the law have been selected for special reference in these notes

Driving Licence.—As to fee, &c., see p. 549.
No person to drive without a licence, nor employ a person to drive who is not licensed
To be produced to police constable on demand; but no conviction if heence produced at a police station within five days. On application for heence declaration must be made as to any physical disability, &c., certain disabilities will involve refusal of licence.

Speed Limits.—The Act prescribes Speed Limits for various Classes of Motor Vehicles. but for ordinary passenger motor cars (adapted to carry not more than seven, excluding driver) there is now no speed limit. But heavy penalties may be incurred for driving recklessly or at a speed or in manner dangerous to the public having regard to all the circumstances, nature and condition of road, amount of traffic at the time, &c.

Pillion Ruling.—Only one person (pillionaire) on a motor-cycle in addition to driver, and then only on proper seat securely fixed behind the driver.

Third Party Insurance.-No person may use, or permit to be used, a motor vehicle unless covered by a Policy of Insurance in respect of third-party risk. There is to be a "Certificate" of such insurance, and this certificate of insur-ance must be produced by a driver to a constable on demand. Under the Regulations of Transport Ministry an applicant for a car licence under the Finance Acts must with his applica-tion produce to the Licensing Authority his Certificate of Insurance.

Highway Code.-The Minister of Transport has compiled a Highway Code as authorised by the Act. It is issued with driving licence, and copies may be obtained from H.M. Stationery Office or booksellers, price zd. The code is intended as a guide to persons using the road, and may be revised from time to time. Failure to observe any provision of the code is not an offence of itself, but it may be relied on as tending to establish or negative the liability of a party in any proceedings whether civil or criminal.

Accidents.-In the case of an accident causing damage to any person, vehicle or animal, the driver of the motor vehicle must stop, and on request of any person having reasonable grounds for so requiring, give his name and address and identification of his vehicle. If this is not done on the spot then the accident must be reported at a police station or to a constable as soon as possible, and in any case within 24 hours.

NOTE.—From January 1, 1932, every motor vehicle, but not motor-cycle, must be fitted with a reflecting mirror.

If the applicant for a Passport be a British subject by naturalisation, the Certificate of Naturalisation must be forwarded to the Passport Office with the Declaration or letter of recommendation. British subjects by naturalisation will be described as such in their Passports, which will be issued subject to the necessary qualifications. British Passports are only available for travel to the countries maned thereon, but may be endoused for additional countries. The possession of a Passport so endorsed does not, however, exempt the holder from compliance with any Immigration Regulations in force in British or foreign countries, or from the necessity of obtaining a visa where required

Passports endorsed as valid for the British Empire are also ave'lable for travelling to termtory under Britith protection or mandate, not, however, including Palestine or Iraq, for which countries special endorsements must be obtained

Foreign Office Passports are available for five years from the date of issue, unless otherwise stated. On the expiration of their period of validity they may be renewed for further consecutive periods of one to five years. In no circumstances are they available beyond ten years from the date of issue. Thereatter, or if at any time the Passport contains no further space for visas, application must be made for the issue of a new Passport.

A Passport cannot be issued or renewed by the foreign Office on behalf of a person already abroad; such person should apply, in a foreign country, to the nearest British Mission or Consulate, or, within the British Empire, to the nearest Passport issuing authority.

Persons resident in the Irish Free State should make application for their Passports to the Passport Department, Ministry of External Affairs, Dublin.

VACCINATION.

In England and Wales vaccination is compulsory within six months from birth, the obligation to comply with the law being imposed on the parent or other person having custody of the child. The local Public Vaccinator (a ing directions may be found useful to those who, doctor appointed by the local authority) will in cases of emergency, are called upon to draw vaccinate free of charge. Penalties are incurred; up wills, either for themselves or others:—

TESTATOR OR TESTATRIX.—The person who

Exemption may be obtained if a parent, within four months from the birth, makes a declaration that he conscientiously believes that vaccination would be prejudicial to the health of the child.

WARD OF COURT.

By appropriate legal process an Infant may be made what is termed a Ward of Court in the Chancery Division of the High Court. In this way judicial control of the Infant may be secured, the court assuming and exercising wide powers in respect both of the person and property of Wards of Court. Legal advice will obviously be necessary as to the circumstances in which an order might be made in any particular case.

REASONS FOR MAKING A WILL.—Every man having a wife and family should make his will. However small his estate, it is an imperative duty m most cases, and is safer in every case, to protect the interest of the survivors by a will, and by the appointment of one or more trustworthy persons to carry his wishes into effect. When persons die intestate, having foolishly put off making a will until it is too late, their negligence may deprive those for whom they were most anxious to provide The help of a lawyer in anxious to provide The help of a lawyer in making a will is not in every case essential, but it is always advisable, particularly where there is a desire on a testator's part to provide for his property being "settled" as it is called -e.g., the income being paid to his widow and the capital being ultimately divided among his children, for this requires the skill of a practised lawyer. Assuming a lawyer is not employed, a person having resolved to make a will must not regard it as a light matter, to be got rid of in a few minutes, but one demanding the most serious attention. It is only after a person is dead, and cannot explain his meaning, that his will can be open to dispute. It is the more necessary, therefore, to express what is meant in language of the utmost clearness, avoiding the use of any word or expression that admits of another meaning than the one intended. It is better to be prolix than to leave the smallest room for doubt or uncertainty, although the same name or word be often repeated. Sounding phrases are entirely out of place Avoid the use of "legal terms," such as "heirs" and "issue, when the same thing may be expressed in plain language. If m writing the will a mistake be made, it is better to rewrite the whole. Before a will is executed, that is, signed by the testator in presence of two witnesses, an alteration may be made by striking through the words with a pen, but oppo-Boroughs, which take the place of the old Boards site to such alteration the testator and winnesses of Guardians. The law is consolidated in the should write their names or place their initials.

Never scratch out a word with a kinfe or other and noalteration of any kind whatever must be made after the will is executed. testator afterwards wishes to change the disposition of his estate, it is better to make a new will, revoking the old one, or to add a codicil to the first, which must be duly executed and attested in the same manner as the original will. A will should be written in ruk and very legibly on a single sheet of paper. Although, of course, forms of wills must vary to suit different cases, the follow-TESTATOR OR TESTATRIX.—The person who maker be a woman, the testatrix.

BSTATE.—By this word is to be understood property of all kinds, both real and personal.

Real property includes tithes and advowsons, as well as freehold land and houses; while personal property includes debts due, arrears of rents, money, leasehold property, house furniture, goods, assurance policies, stocks and shares in companies, and the like.

RESIDUARY LEGATEES.—It is well in all cases to leave to some person or persons "the residue of my estate and effects," although it may be thought that the whole of the property has been disposed of m legacies already mentioned in the will. It should be remembered that a will operates on property acquired after it has been

To BEGIN A WILL.—A form in which a will may be commenced is:—"This is the last will of me, Thomas Smith, of Vine Cottage, Silver Street, Reading, in the county of Berks."

TO END A WILL. - After disposing of the property, the will may be ended as follows :- " And I hereby appoint the said — sole (or joint) executor(s) of this my Will, and I revoke all former wills and codicils. Dated this — day of —, 19—.

EXECUTION OF A WILL AND WITNESSES—The

testator should sign his name at the foot or end of the will, in presence of two witnesses, who will immediately sign their names in his and in each other's presence. A person who has been left a legacy or share of residue in the will, or left a legacy or share of residue in the win, or whose wife or husband has been left a legacy, should not be an attesting witness. Their attestation would be good, but they would forfeit the legacy. It is better that a person named as executor should not be a witness. Husband and wife may both be witnesses, provided neither is a legatee. If a solicitor be appointed executor, it is lawful to direct that his ordinary fees and charges shall be paid; but in this case he (as an interested party) must not be a witness to the will

Opposite to or beneath the testator's signature should be written the attestation clause. following form of attestation will be found sufficient.

William Jones, of Vine Cottage, Silver Street, Reading, Tailor. Henry Morgan, of North Street,

Reading, Esq

It is desirable that the witnesses should be fully described, as they may possibly be wanted at some future time. If the testator should be too ill to sign, even by a mark, another person may sign the testator's name to the will for him, m his presence and by his direction, and in this case it should be shown that the testator knew the contents of the document. The attestation clause should therefore be worded "Signed by Thomas Brown, by the direction and in the presence of the testator, Thomas Smith, in the joint presence of us, who thereupon signed our names in his presence and in the presence of each other, the will having been first read over to the testator, who appeared fully to understand the same."
If the testator be blind the will should be read aloud to him in the presence of the witnesses. and the fact mentioned in the attestation clause.

makes the will is the testator, or if the will- If by inadvertence the testator should have signed his will without the witnesses being present, then the attestation should be:—"The present, then the attentation should be:—The testator acknowledged his signature already made as his signature to his last will and testament, in the joint presence, &c. Amy omission in the observance of these details causes delay and expense, and sometimes great the attention of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of the second of t difficulty is experienced in procuring an affidavit by one of the attesting witnesses before the will can be admitted to Probate. The stringency of the law as to signature and witnessing of a will is only relaxed in favour of soldiers, sailors and airmen in certain curcumstances

Codion .- When any change is required to be made in the disposition of property as stated in the will the change should be embodied in a codicil. A codicil should begin:—"This is a codicil to the will of me, Thomas Smith, of Vine Cottage, Silver Street, Reading, in the county of Berks, the said will bearing date," &c. A codicil must be dated at the end, and signed and witnessed with exactly the same formalities as the will.

EXECUTORS.—It is usual to appoint two executors, although one is sufficient. The name and address of each executor should be given in full, as follows .- "I appoint John Jones, of number twenty-one, London Street, Ipswich, and Edward Matthews, of number seventeen, Market Street, Lincoln, executors of this my will " cutor may be a legatec. Thus a child or wife to whom the whole or a portion of the estate is left may be appointed sole executor, or one of two executors. The addresses of the executors are not necessary; but it is desirable, here as else-where, to avoid ambiguity or vagueness.

APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEES -The form of appointment of executors will also serve when the estate is left in care of trustees, except that the persons should be designated "executors and trustees." The Public Trustee may be appointed executor or trustee of a will. See Public TRUSTS OF THE WILL.-When the estate is wholly for the children, the will may read, after the appointment of the executors and trustees :-"I give and devise all my estate and effects, real and personal, of which I may die possessed or entitled to, unto the said John Jones and Edward Matthews, upon trust in equal shares for all or any my children or child living at my death who being sons or a son attain the age of a years or being daughters or a daughter attain that age or marry. And for all or any the children or child living at my death, who being male attain the age of az years or being female attain that age or marry, of any child of mine who dies in my lifetime leaving children or a child living at my death, such last-mentioned children or child to take the share or shares which their parent would have taken if living at my death, and so that no grandchild of mine shall take whose parent is living and capable of taking." Where the widow is to have a life-interest use the following words: "upon trust for my wife during her life [or during her widowhood], and after her death [or second marriage, which first happens) upon trust in equal shares for all or any my children or child "&c. as before The words in square brackets will only be used where the widow is to lose her interest if she marries again.

TRUSTER, post.

TESTAMENTARY CAPACITY—A minor cannot make a will. A married woman (married since January x, 1883) may dispose by will of any real or personal property as her separate property as if she were a feme sole (Married Women's Property Act, 1882, s. z (z)) As to the powers of a woman married before that date it is advisable to consult a solicitor.

-A will is revoked by a subse-REVOCATION .quent will (but only so far as such subsequent will operates as a virtual revocation, as by making other provisions inconsistent with the previous will: for this reason a will should always have a clause revoking previous testamentary dispositions), or by burning, tearing, or otherwise de-stroying the same It is not sufficient to obliterate the will with a pen. Muniage in every case acts as the revocation of a will, unless, in the case of a will made on or after Jan. z, 1926, it is expressed to have been made in contemplation of mairiage (Law of Property Act, 1925, 8. 177); so that after marriage the old will should be reacknowledged, or a new one made.

LAPSED LEGACIES -If a legatee die in the lifetime of the testator, the legacy or share of residue lapses and falls into the residue, excepting only in cases where the legatee is a child or "other issue" of the testator and leaves issue living at the testator's death, and the will does not provide for the class of children or issue being ascertained at some period other than the death of the testator For instance, if a share of residue is left to "all my children hving at my wife's death," the share of a child who died in the wife's lifetime would lapse even though the child should leave issue

TO ONE PERSON ABSOLUTELY .- When it is the intention to leave all the property to one person, as for instance a wife or child, the will may real.—"I devise and hequeath all my estate and effects, real and personal, which I may die possessed of or entitled to, unto my wife Mary Smith, absolutely

TO CHILDREN UNDER AGE -When estates are left wholly or in part to children under the age of az years, trustees should be appointed to hold the property in trust for those to whom it will ultimately belong. The trustees will have power to apply the annual meome for their maintenance A wife may be appointed a trustee, or may be sole trustee. It is also usual to appoint the executors or some near relative, guardians of children under age. By the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1896, the mother of a child, if she survives the father, becomes the guardian of such child, either alone, if no guardian is appointed, or jointly with any guardian appointed by the father.

ALL PROPERTY TO BE INVESTED.—Executors and trustees may be empowered to sell and dispose of an estate, and after the payment of all just debts and expenses to invest the remainder. For this purpose the section headed "Trust Investments" should be consulted.

DUTIES OF EXECUTORS, -After the death of the testator, the duties of the executor are briefly as testator, the duties of the executor are briefly as follows.—The first duty of the executors, or of one of them, is to see that the funeral takes place in a suitable and becoming way, then to make lists of the delts and the assets or property. For purposes of duty it is necessary to estimate the value of the real and personal property left, or get it valued. (For scale of duty see Index, "Estate Duty.") Under the Kinanco Act. 1804, duties are charged on all Finance Act, 1894, duties are charged on all property in which the testator had a life mterest, even though the property may not have been under his personal control. The executor must take the will to the Principal Probate Registry, Somerset House, or to the local District Probate Registry, or to a solicitor, and prove the will. Collect all the property of the deceased and pay all his just debts, and before distributing the estate, if it be a large one, it is necessary in order to relieve the executors from personal liability to advertise in certain London and local newspapers for all claims against the estate to be sent in before a specified date. Pay the legacy or succession duty. Dispose of the residue of the property as directed in the will. All the testator's real estate becomes vested in the executors, who hold the same as trustees for the persons beneficially entitled under the will or otherwise, and such persons can only acquire a title to the estate through the executors, after payment of all charges and liabilities to which the same is subject. Executors are not obliged to act, neither is it necessary that all the executors should act . one alone is competent to prove a will and carry out its provisions. In small estates, probate and letters of administration may be obtained through an Liland Revenue Office.

ADMINISTRATORS -If an executor has not been appointed in the will, or if the executor be dead, or does not wish to act, the residuary legatee nearest of kin to the deceased, or a legatee under the will, is entitled to act and administer the will, and is called administrator.

WHERE TO FIND A PROVED WILL

To find a will proved before Jan. x, x858, the date on which the Court of Probate Act, 1857 (as & zr Vict. c. 77), came into operation, it is lest to scarch first—if the testator was a man of substance—the index to the wills proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, which is kept at Somerset House. Failing this, the will is probably to be found in the registry of the district in which it was proved. The wills proved prior to 1858 were all distributed among the district registries when these institutions came into This is the only broad rule which can be laid down to guide a searcher. To find a will proved since 1858 is a far simpler task. It must have been proved either at the Principal Registry at Somerset House, or a District Registry In the former case the original will itself is carefully preserved at Somerset House, the copy of which probate has been granted is in the hands of the executors who proved the will, and another copy for Parliament is bound up in a folio volume of wills made by testators of that initial and date; the indices to these volumes fill a room of considerable size at Somerset House, where the indices may be examined and a copy of any will read on payment of a search fee of one shilling. In the latter case, the original will, proved in the District Registry, is there kept, and may be seen or a copy obtained, but a copy is sent to and filed at Somerset House, where also it may be seen. A general index of grants, both probate and administrations, is prepared and printed annually in lexicographical form, and may be seen at either the Principal or a District Registry. This index is usually ready by about October of the following year. The reader October of the following year. The reader may not copy any part of the will except the names and addresses of the executors and the date and private number of the will. If he desires a copy, he can order one to be made, for which he will pay according to the length of the will, at the rate of sixpence a folio (minety words) for an ordinary copy, and ninepence a folio for a certified copy, which can be produced and read in any court of law. The ap District Probate Registries established by the Act of 1857 are at:—Bangor, Birmingham, Blandford, Bodmin, Bristol, Carlisle, Carmarthen, Chester, Durham, Excter, Gloucester, Ipswich, Lancaster, Leicester, Lewes, Lincoln, Liverpool, Llandaff, Manchester, Newesthautun, Twee Manchester, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Norwich, Nottingham, Oxford, Peterborough, Silrewsbury, Taunton, Wakefield, Winchester, York.

SAFE CUSTODY OF WILLS.

There is a depository for the safe custody of the Wills of living persons at Somerset House. A will not troug person at someract rouse.

A will may be deposited personally, or through the Registrar of a District Registry, who will transmit the will to London in a registered letter. The fee is ze, with an additional ze, if forwarded by a District Probate Registrar. A will once deposited will not be given up to anybody, but must remain in the registry until the testator dies. Any will appointing the Public Trustee as Executor may be deposited with him for safe custody. (See Public TRUSTEE, post.)

PROBATE OF WILLS.

OBTAINING PROBATE OR ADMINISTRATION WITHOUT THE AID OF A SOLICITOR.

The entrance to the office for personal applications is in the south-east corner of the Quadrangle of Somerset House, Strand, Room 44.
The applicant should bring the registrar's certificate of the death of the deceased, or an official certificate of burnal, and the will, if there be one, and full details of the property and debts of the

If there be no will or no executor be appointed, or the executor will not act, two sureties must be obtained to enter into a bond for the faithfui administration of the estate, unless the whole personal estate does not exceed £55, when one surety only will be required. They need not attend upon the first visit.

In no case can any correspondence be entered into; nor can an interview be given to any agent. The business of the department can be transacted only with the applicant in person.

Application may be made at a District Probate Registry instead of at Somerset House.

Where the whole real and personal estate, without the deduction of debts or funeral expenses, does not exceed £500, application may be made at one of the Inland Revenue Offices in the suburbs and many principal towns throughout the country.

Where the deceased has left no will, and the whole personal estate does not exceed £100, the widows, or children, if residing at more than three miles from any Probate Registry, may apply to the Registrar of the County Court. Scotland.—"Confirmation" is the Scottish equivalent of Probate. That is obtained in the Sheriff Court of the County in which the deceased was domiciled at the date of his death or where the had no fixed domicile or died abroad, in the commissariat of Edinburgh. Executors are either "nominate" or "dative." An Executor nominate is one nominated by the deceased in his will. An Executor dative is one appointed by the Court (x) in the case of intestacy or (a) declared executors dative. An inventory of the deceased's estate and a schedule of debts, together with an affidavit, must be given up. If the deceased had personal property in England or Ireland it is shown in the inventory, and then the confirmation is produced in the principal Court of Probate in England or Ireland. It is then sealed in such Courts and has the effect of probate or letters of administration in England or Ireland. In estates under £500 confirmation is obtained at reduced fees.

SCOTS LAW OF WILLS.

The only formalities required by the Law of Scotland as regards due execution of a will are for purposes of authentication A will must be in writing (except that a person may leave a legacy verbally if the amount of that legacy does not exceed no Scots (£8 6s. 8d. sterling). A will may be eithe. (1) holograph, i.e., written by the testator himself, in which case no witnesses are necessary; (a) tested, which means that it is signed in presence of two witnesses. It is not necessary that these witnesses should sign in presence of one another, or even that they should see the testator signing so long as the testator acknowledges his signature to the witnesses. If the testator cannot write, his will may be authenticated by a notary and two witnesses. A parish minister may act as a notary for the purpose of subscribing a will in his own parish. Wills are registered for execution purposes in the Books of the County in which the deceased died domiciled, and in the Books of Council and Session, H.M. General Register House, Edinburgh, for preservation. The original deed may be inspected in the General Register House on payment of a small fee. A certified official copy may be obtained from either register on payment of stamp duties and writing fees.

TRUST FUNDS AND INVESTMENTS.

THE PUBLIC TRUSTER.

This is a Government Office (opened in 1908) by means of which the State acts as Executor and as Trustee under a Will, or as Trustee under a Settlement, whether new or old, and in other capacities of a like nature. The public demand for the services of the Public Trustee is well maintained. The value of the trusts excepted up to March 31, 1921, 1925, 252, 278,78,799.

The facts of any trust, new or old, in which it is desired that the Public Trustee should act may be brought to his notice by letter or by personal interview. Upon his assenting to act, his appointment is effected in the same simple way as in that of a private trustee, or he can be appointed by an Order of the Court. He can act solely or jointly with others.

In the case of a Will about to be made, all that the testator need say is, "I appoint the Public Trustee executor and trustee of this my Will"; or the appointment may be a joint one with friends or relations. In the case of a Will already made, the appointment of the Public Trustee can be effected by means of a codicil. Executors who have obtained probate can trunsfer their duties to him under an Order of the Court. He can also act as Administrator with, or without, the Will annexed.

The Public Trustee being a permanent trustee, the expense of fresh appointments is saved. His integrity is gnaranteed by the State, while the public demand for his services should ensure a valuable experience and skill in the execution of his office; and a wide knowledge in the work of investment

As regards investments, the Public Trustee, is bound by such powers of investment as may be given him in the Will or trust instrument under which he acts or under the general law. See Trust Funds ants. The statutory rules require that strict secreey shall be observed in respect of all matters dealt with in the Department. Accounts of every trust, in shaple form, are furnished to the beneficiaries as required.

The Public Trustee Act provides that the fees to be charged shall be arranged from time to time so as to defray the expenses of the Department and to more. A profit is not intended ment and no more A profit is not intended.

An interview with the Public Trustee or with any of his senior officers can be arranged at any time.

A pamphlet giving full patticulars and details of the fees can be obtained free of cost upon application to the Office of the Public Trustee, kingsway, W.C. s (tel., Holborn 4,300), or at any Post Office.

There is a branch office in Arkwright House, Parsonage Gardens, Manchester.

The succession to the property of a person dying Intestate on or after January 1, 1926, is regulated by The Administration of Estates Act, 1925, which repealed the old law and established one new Code applicable both to Real Estate (land, &c.) and Personal Estate (leaseholds, chattels, investments, &c.). The Act abolished the rule of Primogenture (inheritance by eldest son), the rights of dower (widow's third) and of curtesy (husband's life interest), and all special customs (e.g. gavelkind and Borough English). As to Personal Estate: Parents were placed on an equal footing; a mother regained her ancient preference over an intestate child's brothers and sisters; relatives of the whole blood obtained priority over those of the half blood; and relatives more remote than first cousins were excluded from the distribution. "The widow's £500" under the Intestates Estates Act, 1890, was increased to £1,000, whether there be issue or no issue, and given also to a husband; whilst the widow or husband now also takes all the "personal chattels."

TABLE OF EXAMPLES

Important.—Note.—By Section 45 of the Administration of Estates Act, 1925, a surviving husband or wife takes absolutely (i) the "personal chattels", and (i) £1,000 free of death duties and expenses. The "residue" is then distributed as indicated in the Table.

"Personal chattels" are:—Articles of household use of ornament, &c (not used for business

NOTE A.—Illegitimate children do not succeed to their father or mother as heirs in intestacy.

NOTE B.—In Scotlaud, a lease on intestacy and in the absence of any destination descends to the heir-at-law.

Note C.—When a person dies intestate leaving heritable estate as well as movables, the heir to the heritage, if he is also one of the next-of-kin, is not entitled to any of the movables if he takes the heritage. He may, however, "collate" the heritage, i.e., share it with the other next-of-kin and thus get an equal share of the mixed estate.

* Per capita means by the head; per stirpes means inheriting through a parent deceased. Manables takes per capits divide into as many shares as there are children. Where representatives of a deceased parent take per stirpes they take equally amongst them the share that would have fallen to the deceased had he or she survived.

SOLICITORS' CHARGES.

These are now usually regulated in conveyancing and non-contentious business by the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, and the Scale thereunder, but the Act allows an option to a solicitor of declining to adopt it. It chiefly relates to sales, purchases and mortgages, and is based upon the value of the property or amount of the money involved. Besides this, it is legal for a client to make a bargain beforehand for a fixed sum. The amount coming to the solicitor, whether under Scale or agreement, as intended to cover the services of agreement, is intended to cover the services of himself and his clerks, while it is, of course, exclusive of actual outlay for stamps, &c On purchase or mortgage money exceeding $5,000, the Scale charge for each party's solicitor is 1½ per cent.; this does not apply to sales by auction Where a negotiation fee is chargeable, in addition, by the exceeding surchaser's or murtrager's fact northernocents. vendors, purchasers, or mortgagee's (not mortgagers) solicitor, the Scale charge on sums exceeding £300 and not exceeding £300 is per cent. It should be noted that if the solicitor negotiates the purchase or mortgage, he is entitled to an additional fee of substantial amount under the Scale referred to. Charges are now subject to an increase of 33½ per cent.

Scotland - Solicitors' fees for Conveyancing and General business are regulated by a joint table approved by the different societies of Law Agents (Solicitors). Frees for litigation are regulated by the Court of Session. The tables of fees are published in The "Pailiannent House Book" and in "The Scottish Law Directory. When a solicitor sues for payment of a pro-fessional account it is remitted to the Auditor of the Court for taxation of his charges.

THE MILITIA.

In 1907 the "Old Constitutional Force" knewn as the "Militia" was transformed into the "Special Reserve," but the following Militia units were retained —The Bermuda Militia units were retained:—The Bermuda Militia Artillery, the Channel Islands Militia, and the Malta Militia. In 1982 the terms "Special Reserve (and Extra Reserve) Battalions" were abolished, and "Militia" restored, but no appointments are at present made to the force.

Milita in the War.—At the outbreak of the Great War all units were embodied, the majority being included in Defence Schemes. One or two units served abroad, but, generally speaking, the units were employed as training and reinforcing centres for the Armies in the field.

THE TERRITORIAL ARMY.

In 1907 the "Yeomanry" and the "Volunteers" were transferred into the Territorial teers" were transferred into the Territorial Force, which included English, Welsh, and Scottish Cavalry; Royal Horse, Royal Field, and Royal Garrison Artillery; Royal Engineers; Infantry; Royal Army Service Corps and Royal Army Medical Corps. In roar the title was changed to "Territorial Army."

Territorials in the War.—The strength of the Territorial Force in July, 1914, was about $65,000. During the Great War are new units were formed, and there passed through the ranks of the force about 50,000 officers and 1,000,000 officer ranks. The Territorial Force suffered total battle casualties of 27,000 officers and nearly 600,000 other ranks, of which some 6,600 officers and 105,000 other ranks were killed. Among the war honours gained by officers and men of the Territorial Force were 70 Victoria Crosses.

OFFICIAL END OF THE WAR.

The Oficial Termination of the War, when Treaties of Peace had been ratified by the respective Governments, was Aug. 32, rear. The Ottoman Empire was excluded from the Order in Council, and War with Turkey was declared at an and on a worst force. at an end on August 6, 1984.

THE CHURCH ASSEMBLY (or "National Assembly of the Church of England") was established in 1920, "to deliberate on all matters concerning the Church of England and to make provision in respect thereof." The Assembly consists of three Houses, composed of Bishops, Clergy, and Latty respectively. The first two Houses consist of the Convocations of Canterbury and York, of which the respective Upper Houses form the House of Bishops, and the respective Lower Houses the House of Cleryy: the House of Laity comprises representatives of the Laity of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, elected the Provinces of Canterbury and York, elected every five years by the Lay members of the bhoosean Conferences, who consist mainly of representatives elected, either directly or indirectly, by members of the ('hurch of England on a roll prepared in each parish.

The Church Assembly is free to discuss any proposal concerning the Church of England, and to make provision in respect of such matters, but where this includes Parliamentary sanction for any alteration contemplated, this authority is to be sought in the manuer prescribed by the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919, otten referred to as the "Enabling Act." It is specially provided that any innovation touching doctrinal formulæ, or the services or ceremonies of the Church, or the administration of the Sacraments or sacred rites thereof, must be debated and voted upon by each of the three Houses sitting separately, and must then be either accepted or rejected by the Assembly in the terms in which it is finally proposed by the liouse of Bishops. It is further laid down that the Assembly or any of the three Houses may debate and formulate its judgment by resolution upon any matter concerning the Church, or otherwise of religious or public interest, but the Assembly may not issue any atatement pur-porting to define the doctrine of the Church on any question of theology. None of the powers belonging to the Convocations of Canterbury and York is to be diminished or derogated by the Assembly, which is also prohibited from exercising any power or performing any function distinctively belonging to the Bishops by right of their episcopal office.

Parochial affairs are managed by Parochial Church Meetings of parishioners who are members of the Church of England and by Church Councils elected by such meetings.

GENERAL SYNOD,

Consisting of House of Bishops (13) and House of Representatives (viz., 208 clerical and 416 lay). Honorary Secretaries, Ven. C. K. Irwin, B.D.; Very Rev. H. B. Kennedy, B.D.; J. A. Maconchy and Major E. H. C. Wellesley.

Secretary to the REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH BODY (INCORPORATED 1870), A. F. Maude, 52 St. Stephen's Green E., Dublin; Asst. Sec. Rev. J. H. Yates, B.D. Chief Accountant—George B. Butler.

By the Act of Union, 2800, the Church of Ireland | Synod, and 3 parochial nominators (lay) appointed was united with the Church of England, the | by the registered vestrymen of the parish. was unused with the Church of England, the Sovereign, as one of its members, being supreme governor on earth. By the Act of 1859 this union was severed, and on Jan. 1, 1871, the Church of Ireland resumed her independent position. The Act of 1859 not only disestablished the Irish Church, but also took away her endowments, nothing being 19th but the right to the life services of the annulant Bishops and Charge the annuof the annuitant Bishops and Clergy (the annuities provided were commuted for a capital sun), the right to claim churches in use for divine service, the right to buy the See and Glebe Houses (with garden and curtilage), and £500,000 in lieu of private endowments.

The supreme governing body of the Church of Ireland is the GENERAL SYNOD, which meets annually.

Subject to the GENERAL SYNOD are so Diocesan Synods, which are assisted by smaller elected bodies called Diocesan Councils.

The Bishop of the Diocese is closen by the clerical and lay members of the Diocesan Symod. The Primate is chosen by the House of Bishops

The financial trustees of the Church are the REPERSENTATIVE BODY, composed of the Arch-bishops and Bishops, 12 clergymen and 25 laymen, chosen by the Diocesan Synods, with 12 00-opted members (clerical or lay). This body holds the property of the Church, and administers its funds, subject to the General Synod.

The first property it held was the capital sum £7,58,075, representing the life annuities of the Bishops and Clergy paid over as commutation money by the Church Commissioners, and also money by the Church Commissioners, and also £500,000 compensation for private endowments. The commutation capital on Dec. 31, 1930, was only £32,479, charged with annulties to 9 annultants. The funds, however, in the custody of the Representative Body amounted in all to £10,727,324, made up of Commutation £32,79 Private Endowments £342,470, Parochial Sustentation £7,003,57, Energyal Sustentation £75,257,67, General Symod Funds £705,127, and Miccellaneous purposes £2,003,454.

Since 1869 members of the Church have paid clerical and lay membors of the Diocesan Synod.

The Primate is chosen by the House of Bishops from amongst their own number.

The incumbent of the Parish is appointed by a Board of Nonunation, consisting of 7 persons, viz — The Bishop, 3 diocesan nominators (solution and x lay) appointed by the Diocesan in the Diocesan schemes was £340,954.

Registrar of the Episcopal Synod, George J. Wood, W.S., 24 Young Street, Edinburgh. Churches, Mission Stations, &c., 414. Parsonages, 225. Clergy, 326. Communicants, 30.538. THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND is Presbyterian in constitution, and is governed by Kirk Sessions, Presbyteries, Synods, and the General Assembly, which consists of both clerical and lay representatives from each of the Presbyteries. It is presided over by a Moderator (chosen annually by the Assembly), to whom His Majesty the King has granted precedence in Scotland, during his has granted precedence in Scotland, during his term of office, next after the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. The Sovereign is represented by a Lord High Commissioner (appointed each year by the Crown), who receives the sum of £a,coo towards his expenses. The country, for Church purposes, was, prior to the union of the Church of Sootland with the United Free Church of Scotland which was effected at a joint meeting of the General Assemblies of both Churches held on October 2, 1929, in the presence of H.R.H. the Duke of York as Lord High Commissioner, divided into 16 Synods and 84 Presbyteries, and there were about 1,800 ministers and licentiates engaged in ministerial and other work. engaged in ministerial and other work. The number of communicants on the roll (Dec. 3;, 1985) was 750,797. The sum of £80,865 32. 3d. was (apart from Seat Bents levied by Church Authority and amounting to £73,372.65. 7d.), but including legacies, amounting to £45,330 6s. 9d., raised in 1988 for church and missionary purposes. Within the last 80 years considerably over 500 chargis at a cost for stirends and supulsances. within the mat as years considerably over age chapels, at a cost for stipends and supplementary endowments of over £4,45,000, have been endowed and erected into parishes quoud scara. The parish churches numbered 1,470. There were in addition age churches and mission stations, in all of which worship is regularly conducted. The figures applicable to the Church of Scotland as now re-united after 86 years of separation are only partly available :-

Congregations, 3,542; total membership, 1,354,449; Sunday Schools, 3,957, with 352,570 scholars and 45,577 teachers. In so Foreign Mission fields there are 575 European Mission Agents (and in addition ars missionaries' wives, many of whom are doing mission work in the various fields) and 6.767 native pastors, evan-gelists and teachers, including in both cases those of the Women's Foreign Mission. The

those of the Women's Foreign Mission. The income of the Cliurch was £3,391,730.

Until 256 the Church of Scotland was Roman Catholic, but in that year the Scots Parliament abolished the jurisdiction of the Pope, proscribed the Mass, and ratified a Confession of Faith drawn up by John Knox and other divines. In it all essential articles of the aucient creeds of the Church were adhered to. Ceremonies were declared to be temporary in their nature, and ahould be altered when they began to foster superstition. Presbytery was settled in 1890. The restoration of the rights of the Bishops, civil and ecclesiastical, was, however, sanctioned by the General Assembly of 25:0, and three Scottish Bishops were in that year consecrated in London. Further innovations by King James VI. alarmed the people, and the at-tempt of Charles I. to impose on the Church a Book of Canons and a Liturgy was met by the National Covenant and the restoration of Presbyterian forms, which culminated in the Westminster Confession of Faith in 1846. At the Restoration the Church again became Episcopal, but in 1890 the Scottish Parliament re-established Presbyterianism. By the Tresty United between Parliament Scottish Parliament re-established Presbyterianism. of Union between England and Scotland (ratified by the English Parliament 6 Anne c. ii.) the Church of Scotland was secured in its Presbyterian form of government, and the very first official act of a sovereign of the British Empire on his accession is to take an oath to maintain inviolably this settlement. In 1921 Parliament passed the Church of Scotland Act, 1921, to declare the lawfulness of certain Articles declaratory of the constitution of the Church of Scotland. These Articles were framed with a view to facilitating union among Presbyterian Churches in Scotland A committee, appointed by the Secretary for Soctiand (under the Presidency of the late Viscount Haldane), enquired into the question of endowments, following upon which the Church of Scotland (Property and Endowments Bill) was introduced and was passed into law (15 and 16 Geo. V. c. 33) in 1925. The primary purpose of this legislative measure was to transfer to and vest in the Church of Scotland General Trustees, incorporated under the Church of Scotland (General Trustees) Order Confirma-tion Act 1921, the whole properties and endowments belonging to the Church as it then existed for behoof the latter. Further legislation is in progress for the unification of holding of Properties and Investments of the re-united Church of Scotland.

UNDER the general designation of METHODISTS are included all those religious bodies which owe their existence, directly or indirectly, to the efforts of the Revds. John and Charles Wesley. The most numerous and influential of them are

z. Wesleyan Methodists, the original body founded in 1730 by these two brothers. The first Conference, consisting of six clergymen and four laymen, was held in 1744. Since then the growth of Methodism has been great, its present adherents Methodism has been great, its present adherents being given as 23,000,000. The latest statistics of Methodism throughout the world (2932) are: Ministers, 60,27; local preachers, 82,543; members and probationers, 20,028,547; Sunday schools, 23,608; officers and teachers, 967,337; applications of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the contro scholas, 93,608; officers and teachers, 967,337; scholars, 9,949,543; churches and other preaching places, x68,638. The conference is now composed in its Representative Session of 300 mmisters and 300 laymen, with a ministerial president and secretary at its head, elected year by year. The Wesleyams are governed primarily by the Conference, secondarily by the Synois, which are semi-annual meetings of the ministers and selected layman in each district over which selected laymen in each district, over which selected higher in each district, over which as chairman is appointed by the Conference, and thirdly by quarterly meetings of the ministers and lay officers of each direct. The authority of both these last meetings is subordinate to the Conference, which has the supreme legislative and judicial power in Methodism.—Pres. Designate (1938), Rov. Dr. H. Maldwyn Hughes, Principal of Wesley College, Cambridge: Sec. of the Conf., Rev. Robert Bond, 107 Palace Road, Tulse Hill, London, S.W. a.

THE PRIMITIVE METHODISTS.

s. The Primitive Methodists, who sprang up in Staffordshire, in 1810, under the leadership of Hugh Bourne and William Clowes. Owing to the excesses attending certain outdoor services called "camp meetings," the Wesleyan Conference prohibited the continuance of the practice. Bourne and Clowes refused to comply with this decision, and were in consequence expelled. They and their sympathisers handed together in a new body, with enlarged powers for the laity. Next to the Wesleyans they are the most numerous and the most democratic of all the denominations which have arisen out of the Methodist movement.—President (1931-32), Rev. E. McLellan, 22 Roe Lane, Southpurt, Lancs. Gen. Sec. of the Church, Rev. Jacob Walton, 78 Harrow View, Harrow, Middlesex.

THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH.
3. The United Methodist Church was formed by the Union in 1907 of three denominations of Methodists which hitherto had been separate from and independent of each other. These were :

The Methodist New Connexion, which owed its origin in 1797 to the Rev. Alexander Kilham, one of the early itinerating Wesleyan preachers. He demanded that the members of the societies, and not the Conference, should be constituted the source of all power in Methodism; and that the Conference should consist of lay as well as minis-terial members, all of whom should be elected by the members of the various societies as their delegates. He was expelled by the Conference, and at once founded a new community.

The Bible Christians, founded in 1815 by

The Bible Cariations, founded in 222 of Wm. O'Bryan, a Wesleyan lay preacher in Cornwall. They existed mainly in the West of England.

The United Methodise Free Churches, which was itself an amalgamation of three different secessions—the Protestant Methodists, formed in 1828; the Wesleyan Methodist Association, which sprang out of a controversy in 1834, concerning the need for a trained ministry; and the Wes-leyan Reform Association, founded in 1849, during a great agitation. A strong opposition to the leading Wesleyan officials was organised, which found expression in Conference delates, but more strongly in anonymous and bitter pamphlets, which were widely circulated. On suspicion of being the authors and circulators of these pamphlets three ministers were expelled. They found so many sympathisers that over 100,000 members seceded to found a new denomination.

The act of union of these three denominations into one took place in London on Septemtions into one took place in London on September 27, 2907, when the first united Conference was held.—President (1932-32), Rev. John Ford Reed, Shebbear College, Beaworthy, Devon; President Designate (1932-32), Rev. Wm. C. Jackson, B.A., 45 Northumberland Street, Higher Broughton, Manchester. See. of Conference, G. P. Bunt, "Rostornel," Alexandra Road, St. Austell, Cornwall; Connexional See., Rev. Henry Smith, 13 Albey Road, Brighton. Abbey Road, Brighton.

INDEPENDENT METHODISTS

4. Independent Methodists .- This body is Conregational in its organisation, with an unpaid Ministry. Its first Conference was held in 1805.

WESLEYAN REFORM UNION, 5. This Union is Methodist in doctrine, Congregational in government, with, if any church desires it, a paid ministry. It is the remnant of the original Reformers expelled from Western Head of the Original Reformers expelled from Western Head of the Midland counties.—President (1921, J. T. RE-UNION.

A scheme for the re-union of the Wesleyau Methodists, the Primitive Methodists and the United Methodist Churches has been approved by all three Conferences. It is anticipated that

An Enabling Bill has been passed by both Houses of Parliament and has received the Houses of Parliament and has received the Royal Assent. The final vote on Union (that is, the final vote prior to that of the Uniting Conference) was taken by the three Conferences in x931, the majority of 79 per cent. being requisite in each case. This vote will take effect in x932. The Uniting Conference will then meet in x932 subsequently to the meeting of the several Conferences. The first United Conference to meet in x932.

Educational Statistics.

I .- ELEMENTARY.

Statutes require parents in England and Wales to cause their children to receive efficient elementary instruction or to attend school from 5 to 14 years of age; in Scotland, to provide efficient education up to 15 years; in Ireland, to cause their children to attend school from 6 to 14 years.

In England and Wales (1920) there were 20,792 public elementary schools with accommodation for 7,120,382 pupils, and average attendance of 4,975,336; in addition, there were 227 special schools for bilind and deaf children, with accommodation for 9,284, and 465 for defective and epileptic children, with accommodation for 40,303. There were (120) 33,508 certificated college-trained men teachers and 64,058 women, 5,542 certificated not college-trained men teachers and 30,953 women, and 2,048 uncertificated men and 29,942 uncertificated women.

In Scotland (1929) there were 2,915 primary schools with accommodation for 851,555, and average attendance of 584,473. There were (1929) 3,916 certificated men teachers and 15,128 women teachers, and 34 provisionally certificated

Elementary school education includes teaching in practical matters—needlework, drawing, gardening, handicrits, cookery, &c.—and the sections upon health, medical attendance, physical training, evening play centres, home study, future employment, &c., show that the schools are valuable agencies in child-welfare generally.

II.—EDUCATION BEYOND ELEMENTARY. Secondary.

The aims, methods, and instructions are in marked contrast to the comparative simplicity of those in Elementary Education. In all the four countries it is now felt that although technical instruction was the first branch to be promoted by statute, undifferentiated 4-year secondary (intermediate) courses should be gone through before pupils proceed to specialisation for industrial, commercial, &c., employments.

dustrial, commercial, &c., employments.

In England and Wales (1929) the number of Secondary schools recognised for grant was 1,241, with 10,249 full-time men and 10,255 full-time women teachers. The Authorities aim at securing graduate teachers as far as possible. The full-time pupils numbered 48,279 boys and 45,272 girls under 12; 140,584 boys and 15,582 girls over 16-a total of 26,938 boys and 15,582 girls over 16-a total of 26,938 boys and 28,247 girls. Of these about one-fourth come up from elementary schools with "free places," others with scholarships. Mine-tenths of these schools receive State grants, and nearly one-third are controlled by Local Authorities. Fees are charged to most of the pupils. Of these "efficient" schools about 40 per cent. receive boarders (about 27,000) in varying proportious and drawn in many cases from distant areas. Most of them are endowed or under trusts, and their trust incomes and property form a considerable asset in secondary school finance. The system in Wales is much the same as in England, though the schools are under earlier statutory provisions, and are called "Intermediate" in many cases. In Wales there is a Central Welsh Board.

In Scotland there are Preparatory and Secondary Departments under the same Commissioners and Local Authorities as the Elementary schools. In 1989 there were 207 Preparatory Departments with 76,091 children on the Register and average attendances of 65,347, and 252 Secondary Departments with 75,231 children on the Register and average attendances of 73,153. The Authorities aim at securing honours graduates as far as possible, and all teachers are certificated.

Technical.

Technical Education in England and Wales is provided in Evening and similar schools and in Day Technical Classes and Technical Institution Courses (mostly controlled by Local Authorities). State grants are paid on the number of students, of whom about one-half are under 17 years of age The average attendance of a student is about 50 hours per annum. There are also Teachers' Courses, Tutorial Classes, and also Schools of Art, Branch Schools of Art, and Art Classes In Scotland Technical Education is provided in like manner.

Training.

Training is provided by the State for Elementary School Teachers, of whom so per cent. have been trained in Colleges having nearly 23,000 places. Slight progress has been made lately towards providing for the Training of Teachers for Secondary Schools, a small annual State grant being made for the purpose; in Scotland all candidates for employment as teachers must undertake a course of training of at least one year in teaching.

Universities.

Many of these institutions now receive annual State grants, nainly in the form of "block grants paid by the Treasury on the advice of the University Grants Committee. Substantial grants are also received from local Education Authorities in England and Wales. State grants to Irish Institutions were transferred from the Treasury to the Irish Governments as from April, rgas.

BOY SCOUTS. (Incorporated.)

FOUNDED in 1908, as a result of an experi-mental camp held by the Chief Scout the previous summer at Brownsea Island, Dorsetprevious summer at Brownses Island, Dorset-shire, the movement was organised by Lord Baden-Powell, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., K.C.B., Chief Scout, to develop good citizenship among boys by forming their character—training them in habits of observation, obedience and self-reliance; inculating loyalty and thoughtfulness for others; teaching them services useful to the public and handicrafts useful to themselves, and promoting their physical development and hygiene.

The Movement (whose membership exceeds 2,310,000) has taken root in all parts of the British Empire, and nearly every other country has adopted it.—Impered Headquarters, 25 Buckingham Palace Road, London, S.W. z.

THE GIRL GUIDES ASSOCIATION. A movement founded by Lord Baden-Powell, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., K.O.B., Chief Scout, on the lines of the Boy Scouts and incorporated by Charter in 1915, while in the year 1923 H.M. the King granted the Movement a Royal Charter. It also seeks to promote their physical development, making them capable of keeping good domes and of bringing up good children. Its desire is to co-operate with educational and other bodies working to this end. The membership of the Movement now numbers over each cose ship of the Movement now numbers over 947,0 all over the world, that of the British Isles alone being over 551,000 Imperial Headquarters, 27-29 Buckingham Palace Road, London, S.W. z.

Beadmasters' Conference Schools.

THE HEADMASTERS' CONFERENCE (Secy., W. A. Buikeley-Evans, C.B. A. L. D., 5 Paper Buildings, Temple, E. C. 4.)—The Headmasters' Conference was founded in 1866 and incorporated in 1869. The object of the Conference is the discussion of educational questions which affect such schools as are in close connexion with the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. In considering what Schools shall be included in the List, or removed from it, the Committee will have regard to the Governing Scheme or other Instrument under which the School is administered, and if the School is maintained or aided by a Local Education Authority (s) how the Governing Body is constituted, (b) to what extent by right or in practice the Governing Body acts independently of the Local Education Authority in directing general policy or administering disposable funds, to the numbers in the School and, in the case of Schools in Great Britain and Ireland, the number of resident Undergraduates of Oxford and Cambridge educated at the School. The Committee may also take into account the proportion of boys in the School.

who, having passed the School Certificate or other equivalent Examination, are continuing their studies beyond that stage. The sumus meetings are, as a rule, held in December, alternately (a) at some school represented on the Conference, (b) at London or some University town.

NOTES:—(a) "Annual Fees" represent the average amount payable annually, exclusive of fees for optional subjects.

(b) "Headmaster." In certain Schools other titles prevail, e.g., Beaumont, "Rector"; Belfast Academical, "Frincipal"; Dulwich, "Master"; Edinburgh Academy, "Rector"; Glenalmond, "Warden"; Halleyhury, "Master"; King William's, I. of Man, "Principal"; Liverpool College, "Principal"; Magdalen Coll. #### THE BROTHERMOOD.

THE BROTHERHOOD MOVEMENT, "to lead men and women into the Kingdom of God, to unite in Brotherhood of mutual help, to win the masses of the people for Jesus Christ, and to encourage the study of social service," may be said to have been founded in 1875 as the outcome of the Pleasent Sunday Afternoon movement initiated by John Blackham of West Bromwich. The movement is mon-molitical and unsactation. An organisation especially aduable for helping a parish to keep the elder lads to their religious duties; was founded in 1893, and combines a military method with moral and religious instruction. It is estimated that 1,000,000 is and connected with it are other societies—instruction. It is estimated that 1,000,000 is disterboods, P.S.A., Bible Classes, &c. President, W. H. # Zecondary Schools.—F. Boys.

A Secondary School, as defined by the Board of Education, is a school for pupils who intend to remain for at least four years, and up to at least the age of ro. It must provide a progressive course of general education of a kind and amount suited to an age-range at least from 12 to 17.

THE INOBPORATED ASSOCIATION OF HEAD MASTERS, so Gordon Square, W.C. r. President, L. W. Taylor, M.A. Joint Hon. Secs., W. Jenkyn Thomas, M.A.; F. R. Hurlstone-Jones, M.A.; Hon. Teasurer, W. W. Yaughan, M.V.O., M.A.; Ass. Sec., H. Marshall.—The qualification for membership is the holding of the head mastership of a Public Secondary school for bows in ship of a Public Secondary school for boys in England or Wales administered under a definite form of public or corporate control by a governing body which has powers both to control the school finances and to appoint and dismiss the head master.

THE SCHOOLMASTERS' ASSOCIATION, IRRLAND (Sey., Rev. C. B. Armstrong, M.A., St. Columba's College, Rathfarnham) is similar to the I.A.H.M. ASSOC. OF ASSISTANT MASTERS IN SECONDARY SCHOOLS, so Gordon Sq., W.C. z. Sec., G. D. Dunkerley, B.Sc.

KING EDWARD VII'S HOSPITAL FOR OFFICERS, SISTER AGNES, 17 Grosvenor Crescent, S W 1. KING EDWARD'S HOSPITAL FUND FOR LONDON, 7 Walbrook, E.C. 4.—Was inaugurated in 1897 to secure more efficient support for the ho-pitals of London and so to commemorate the 6oth anniversary of the accession of Queen Victoria. The Fund not only collects money for the voluntary hospitals, but helps to pro-mote efficiency by means of its annual grants, every individual claim being carefully con-sidered on its merits. Efforts are also made sidered on its nerits. Efforts are also made by various forms of propaganda to arouse and maintain a wider interest in the work of the hospitals generally. Total receipts, 1928, £378,635; expenses, £14,001; grants to hospitals and convalescent homes, £290,200 (including £30,790 for extensions, &c., from Wells legacies); funds in hand (including gifts to capital), £3,638,364 — Pres., H.R.H. It shall be the duty of any person who causes or permits a vehicle to be on any road during the hours of darkness to provide the vehicle with lamps in accordance with the requirements of this Act and of any regulations made there-

dar." (Sec. 1(2).)
(Regulations have been made and are contained in S.R. & O. No. 723 of 1989.)

Whole or partial exemption may be given to validles used for naval, military or air force purposes (Sec. x 3) (b)); vehicles carrying imfammable or explosive goods of a nature special technique of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of the complete section of t fied in the regulations; vehicles when standing on places specially set aside for the purpose; vehicles drawn or propelled by hand, save as provided (Sec. 1 (a)).

The Minister may by regulation require or permit, on conditions, distinctive lamps to be carried displaying coloured lights on vehicles used as Hackney Carriages or public service vehicles or vehicles used for naval, military, or air force, or police purposes, or as ambulances.

The "hours of darkness" are defined thus:—

(a) As respects the period of summer time, the time between one hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise.

(b) As respects the remainder of the year the time between half an hour after sunset and half an hour before sunrise.

Bicycles (pedal and mechanical solo), pedal tricycles, and invalid carriages, require a single white light to the front.

Pedal bicycles and tricycles need not show a red light to the rear if they have attached an unobscured and efficient red reflector. Pedal bicycles and tricycles and solo motor cycles need not carry a lamp if being wheeled by a person on foot as near as possible to the near or left hand edge of the carriage way. Horse Vehicles.—A separate lamp showing a red light to the rear shall not be required to be carried if the lamps showing a light to the front also show a red light to the rear visible from a reasonable distance and no part of the vehicle or load extends more than 6 feet behind such lamps. Any vehicle carrying a load overhanging laterally more than 12 inches from the centre of the nearest side lamp must have either an additional lamp on the sides where the load overhangs or the position of the one lamp must be such that no part of the load projects outwards more than as inches beyond a vertical line drawn through the centre of the substituted or additional lamp. On any vehicle carrying a load more than 6 feet ch any vermon carrying a road more than 6 feet behind any lamp showing a red light to the rear carried in accordance with the Act, an additional or substituted lamp shall be carried so that such load shall not project more than 6 feet beyond such additional or substituted lamp.

Certain vehicles engaged in agriculture are exempt from carrying lamps.

There are special provisions as to vehicles There are special provisions as to ventices towing and being towed. A lamp showing a red light need not be carried by the drawing vehicle; no lamp showing a light to the front need be carried on any vehicle being drawn; a lamp showing a red light need not be carried on any vehicle being drawn except the rearmost vehicle. Provided—if the distance between any such vehicles exceeds g feet, each vehicle shall be required to carry the same lamps as if it were not a drawing vehicle or a vehicle being drawn, and if a drawn vehicle carries a load that projects laterally more than as inches beyond the outer-most of the lamps showing a white light to the front, au additional lamp shall be carried on the projecting load so that no part projects more than a inches beyond a vertical line through the centre of such lamp. Public Service Vehicles must, in compliance with the requirements of The Public Service

Vehicles (Conditions of Fitness) and (Equipment and Use) Provisional Regulations, 1931, be adequately lighted inside, and, in the case of double-decked vehicles fitted with a permanent top, also lighted outside at all times during the hours of darkness when carrying passengers

Regnal Years.—The years of a king's reign are the regnal years, and each begins on the anniversary of his accession: e.g., Regnal year at of the present King began on May 6, 1930; regnal year as begins on May 6, 1931. The system is used for dating Acts of Parliament. The Summer Time Act of 1923, for example, is quoted as 12 and 16 Geo. V. ch. 64, because it became law in the session which extended over part of these two regnal years. The regnal years of Edward VII. began on January 22, so that Acts passed in that reign are, in general, quoted with only one year number, but year 10 of this series ended on May 6, 1910, and Acts of the Parliamentary Session 1910 are headed 10 Edw. VII. and 2 Geo. V.

LIFE ASSURANCE.

THE list on the following two pages contains the names of all the more important British Life offices, and of nine Colonial companies (marked C), all of which transact business in this country.

CLASS OF BUSINESS.—The second column shows whether the company is conducted on the Mutual wherein the company is confident on the divisible profit is allotted to participating policy-holders (M), or whether the company has proprietors by whom part (usually a very small proportion) of such profit is received (P). Life offices transacting other insurance business are marked O in this column. In such cases the Life funds are kept separately, and are not liable for the claims of other departments. The Share Capital is usually liable for the claims of all branches. Those having an Industrial branch are indicated by letter I.

FIGURES.—These are taken from the latest annual accounts available at date of going to press, and in the majority of cases refer to annual reports for the financial year ended az December, 1930.

LIFE FUNDS .-- The amounts of these funds, though interesting, are not in themselves a sufficient indication of the financial stability of a company, which cannot be judged unless liabilities are actuarially compared with assets.

PREMIUM INCOME.—The annual premium income is in all cases stated after deduction of the amount paid to other companies for reassuring parts of the risks.

consequently the percentage of the premium income, consequently the percentage of the premium income absorbed in expenses is shown. The average percentage of British offices is about 13/5%, of which about 5% is expended on commission and 7/5% on other expenses. This ratio taken by itself is frequently misleading, because, if the proportion of new business is large, the percentage of the total premiums absorbed in expenses may legitimately be higher than where the new business is small. Moreover, where rates of premium are below the average any comparisons of percentage should be considered, with due regard to this feature, a gain to the policyholder through reduced premium being equivalent to an immediate cash bonus.

INTEREST .- The rate of interest earned is important for comparison with the rate assumed in valuing liabilities, since the greater the margin between these rates the greater is the surplus available from this source for bonus. The rate of interest given is without deduction of Income Tax except where marked (N)-net.

VALUATIONS.—The last columns of the table are derived from the valuation returns made by the companies to the Bard of Trade. A valuation indicates liability under existing policies, after making allowance for the amounts to be paid and received. It is assumed that deaths will occur in accordance with a mortality table, and that interest will be earned at a certain rate. Various mortality tables are employed, those most usual being known as the H^m and 0^m, and the corresponding Tables Hⁿ(2) and 0^m(2) which exclude mortality in the first five years of assurance. If a company assumes that it will earn a high rate of interest in the tuture, the net liability will appear less than if it assumes a low rate, while the liability on account of mortality appears greater by some tables than by others. The position of an office parts of the risks.

EXPENSE.—The expenses of a Life office intables than by others. The position of an oneclude, in all cases where paid, commission to is most satisfactory when a stringent basis of agents. The amount of expenses is less imporvaluation is adopted, because the margin between the calculated and experienced liability is larged to the calculated and experienced liability is larged to the calculated and experienced liability is larged. The Om and Om(9) tables in conjunction are more stringent than the Om table alone, the Hm is more stringent than the American, and with every table the lower the rate of interest assumed the more stringent is the valuation.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES.

Most large fire offices belong to the tariff association, charging identical rates of premium. There are, however, a number of non-tariff offices which claim to assess individual risks

Private Dwelling Houses, built of brick or stone and tiled or slated and in no hazardous proximity, ss. 6d.

Household goods therein, usually ss.

A number of companies assue "comprehensive" policies embracing in one contract all risks incidental to private houses and contents.

Shops and Warehouses, similarly built and circumstanced, in which no hazardous goods are deposited nor hazardous trades carried on, from as.

Stock and Utensils in trade, fixtures, and household furniture in such shops and warehouses, from as.

Most fire insurance companies transact accident and miscellaneous business, and if a strong company be selected with a reputation for liberal dealing it will probably be found to the advantage of a householder that he should effect with it all such policies as he may require, in omes which claim to assess interrelated in the second preindependently on merita. Tariff rates of preplace of dividing them amongst several commium per £200 insured against fire for the more common classes of risk are as follows—viously referred to, combine in one contract protection against damage by fire to the contents of a house, or from burglary, housebreaking. larceny, theft, &c., and insurance against demestic servants employers' liability, damage from storm or tempest, third party risks, and other hazards. This can usually be arranged for an annual premium of sp. per £ roo of the full value of the contents of the house. Fire insurance of the house itself is not included, however, in this estimate, but can be included under the same policy, if desired. The advantage of a policy of this description is that it obviates the inconvenience of payments of small amounts in insurance premiums at different dates, and that in one comprehensive form it supplies protection at a moderate cost for all a householder's ordinary insurance requirements.

ANNUAL PREMIUMS FOR WHOLE LIFE | ASSURANCE.

Life assurance may be effected either with or without participation in profits If without participation, both sum assured and premium remain nuchanged. If with participation, a higher premium is charged, and bonuses can either be payable with the sum assured, applied to reduce the premium, or surrendered for cash. An alternative plan is available in some offices whereby future bonuses are anticipated and used to reduce premiums from the ontset This is called the "Discounted Bonus" or "Cost Price" system. If the bonuses actually declared exceed those anticipated, the difference is credited to the policyholder; if, however, the anticipated bonuses exceed those declared, the balance bonness exceed these devaned, the balance has to be liquidated by the policyholder or remains as a debt Policies should only be effected on this system in companies which can point to good and consistent bonus records, and whose valuation reserves are particularly strong

The ages applicable to the life and endowment assurance (but not the annuity) rates as hereafter given are "next birthday" unless otherwise stated.

The next table shows the annual premiums payable throughout life for a policy of £100 payable at death, with profits it is not sufficient to judge a life office by premium rates only An office charging a high premium may give higher lonuses than one charging a low premium, and therefore bonus results and prospects as well as premium, lave to be considered. Some offices an assurance is effected, and how suconly allow bonuses to be taken in reduction of premium, and on this plan the rates are usually ally in cases of endowment assurance.

high to commence with, but are greatly reduced after a few years Some reserve bonnses for the older classes of policyholders, and in these cases lower premiums than the average are usually charged. Most offices grant niterim bonness between valuation periods, and it is important to ascertain if this is the case before an assurance is effected, and how such interim bonness compare with valuation bonness, especi-

Notes for page 465 .-

A nutrallan Mutual Co-operative, London Life and Mutual and Citizens' Rates are for quarterly payments. † Caledonian—Increased rates for purchase money of $5,000 or over. ‡ London Life Rates are for exact sage stated, but are apportioned for actual age at time of purchase.

This Table shows amount of Annuity granted for every 2:cee paid. The age is calculated from the last birthday, but many offices quote intermediate rates for every half or quarter year. By some a proportionate amount is payable to day of death. Some Companies pay whole or part of stamp duty. [For Notes see page 44.]

The Annuity is calculated as payable half-yearly. In some cases the quarterly rate is the same; in others it is a little less. Some offices grant special terms in case of impaired lives.

The "Remedy" is	the amou	mt of s	arietion from standard permitted in fineness and m weight of coins when first Issued from the Mint.

Standard Gold contains twenty-two twentyfourths (carats) of fine gold and two twentyfourths of alloy; fineness, 916 66, or 22 curats; 240 troy omices of standard gold are coined into 934 sovereigns and one half-sovereign; one troy ounce is, therefore, worth £3 17s. 10¹2d., and one onnce of pure gold, on the same basis, £4 4#. 11  $\frac{1}{2}d$  During 1931 the average market price of gold fluctuated about the mean value up brief of gord internation at the suspension of the gold standard on September at the price has been fixed in relation to the \$, storling exchange being 106/11 on October 17. Bar Gold - The "bar." as purchased in the bullion market, is see oz. troy (except for the Far East, which requires to oz. bars).

Standard Silver formerly consisted of thirtyseven-fortieths of fine silver and three-fortleths of alloy; fineness, 925. Silver for coinage, by an Amending Act (20 Geo V ch. 3), consists of one-half silver, one-half alloy; or in millesimal fineness, 500; az truy ounces of 500 fineness are coined into 66 shillings † [Another Standard, called the "New Sterling" or Britannia, of the fineness zz oz. zo dwt (958 33), is practically obsolete. It is occasionally used, however, for high-class plate ]

HALL MARKS ON PLATE .

Assay Office Marks. - Official marks stamped on gold and silver plate at Assay Offices:—

Assay Office ... Distinguishing Mark.
Leopard's Head (uncrowned from smiths' Hall) 1300 to 1478-9, when it became 1300 to 1478-9, when it became crowned until 1821, since when it has been uncrowned). From 1697-1730 this mark was no used in London.

Birmingham... Anchor.

Chester ...... Sheffield ..... City Arms (3 Garbs and a Sword) Crown. Edinburgh... .. Castle.

Glasgow ..... Tree, Fish & Bell. Dublin .... Harp crowned The Assay Offices at Bristol, Exeter, Newcastleupon-Tyne, Norwich and York have long been closed. Makers' Mark (instituted in 1263).—This is impressed by the maker, and consists of initial letter (or letters) indicating the Surname (or Christian and Surname) of the maker.

Dats Mark (instituted in 1478-9) —The year in which the article is marked at the Assay Office is indicated by a letter on a shield, the type of letter and the shape of the shield being changed in cycles and the snape of one streta being changed in cycles of so, as or so years. In so-year cycles (London, invariably, Chester, alternately with as, and Sheffield, alternately with as), the letters J, V, W, X, Y, Z are omitted; in as-year cycles (Birmingham, Edinburgh and Dublin, and alternately at Chester and Sheffield) the letter "j" is omitted from the alphabet; at Glasgow all the letters are employed in a sé-year cycle

The Sovereign's Mark. — The "lion First" passant," for silver articles only, was first used in 1544, and has been is use ever since (except during the Higher Standard period, 1697-1730). From 1544-9 it was crowned;

since then, uncrowned.

The Sovereign's Head -The portrait of the reigning Sovereign was impressed on all plate reigning Sovereign was impressed on an plate chargeable to duty assayed from 1784-1889-90. The duty on plate was removed in 1890, and the Sovereign's head does not appear on plate assayed before 1784 or after 1890.

The Crown.—On gold articles only, in lieu of the "lion passant" on silver.

Britannia.—A full-length figure of Britannia was impressed on silver plate of a special standard of fineness (zz oz. zo dwt. of fine metal to each so dwt. of alloy) during a short period only, 1697-1720; since that date the Britannia quality has been manufactured in small quantities, bearing the figure of Britannia, with the lion's head erased and the date mark.

Sterling Silver .- Articles of silver plate marked at an assay office are guaranteed to be of the requisite standard of purity and to contain z oz. a dwt. of fine metal to each z8 dwt. of alloy.

Sterling Gold .- Articles of gold plate marked at an assay office are guaranteed to contain such amount of pure gold as is marked thereon by the assaying office in carats and decimals thereof. The relative values of the various standards is shown below:

The Collector will find but little difficulty in

The Collector will find but little difficulty in distinguishing a letter of one cycle from that of another, presuming his knowledge to be insufficient to judge by the style and period of the article itself, e.g.:

An article marked with the letter F 2721-2 can be distinguished from letter F 1801-3 by the difference in the shape of the respective shields; as also those containing the crowned leopard's head and the lion passant; the absence of the sovereign's head in the former as against its presence in the latter case; the different form of the leopard's head (which was form of the leopard's head (which was "crowned" until x8a3); and lastly, the irregularity of the stamp in the first case as compared with the uniformity of the latter stamp. These again can be distinguished from F x88x-a as before, by the different shield of the date letter only (the shields of the remaining marks being the same as those of r8or-s); the absence of crown on leopard's head, and the presence of the Queen's vice the King's head.

This Comparative Table shows the approximate period of each style. It must, however, be remembered that the transition from one style to the next was slow and gradual, and can often hardly be traced, so minute are the differences. It is only for convenience in alluding to the different stages of evolution that the division is made, for it must not be forgotten that the Architecture of England is one continuous development.

Note.—The first portion (I-VIII) of this table is based upon that given on p. 347. Parts IX and X on p 777, and "Modern" on p. 858, of "A History of Architecture on the Comparative Method" (9th ed.), by Sir Banister Fletcher, P.R.I.B.A., F.S.A. (Bataford.)

MARKS ON PORCELAIN.

PUTTERY or porcelain usually bear distinctive marks either painted on or stamped into the hottom of the article. These marks may indicate the factory, the potter, or the decorator, and in the case of Chinese or Japanese ware the dynasty at the date of manufacture. In the factory at Sevres the practice of marking the date by letters was also followed, and this has led to the forging of many bogus pieces. The factories in Europe generally indicate the place of origin only Special knowledge is therefore required of the collector, and the learned amateur notes not only the mark, but the material, the colouring, and the decoration of the article, and frequently has to compare it with one that is unquestionably genuine. The following hints will, in the absence of the more learned dissertation of Mr. Chaffers, serve as a guide to the ordinary possessor or purchaser.

In the manufacture of porcelain, two main varieties of paste are used, termed 1 espectively hard and soft, or, as the French have it, pâte dure et pâte tendre. The hard paste contains more alumina and less silica than the soft When baked, it is transincent, hard, and sonoous on being struck; it has a white, milky colour, and can sustain, without injury, sudden alternations of high and low temperature. Its essential constituent is pure white kaoliu, a variety of clay which is exceedingly scarce in England and other parts of Europe, but of comparatively common occurrence in many thirties of China and Japun The soft variety has an unctinous, creain-like enamel, and is soapy to the touch, it is lighter than the other kind, and less hard (a knife will scratch it), and does not require so great a heat for solidification.

The manufacture of hard, and what is often considered the only true, porcelain, was invented by the Chinese about 180 B C, and attained its greatest perfection at the beginning of the 18th century. The secrets of the art were in 1818, carried over to Japan, whose inhabitants soon became formidable rivals to the older makers. Specimens of this castein ware had, from a very early date, occasionally found their way into Enrope, but no legiliar importation took place until the middle of the 18th century, when a small settlement was formed on the Japanese coast by some enterprising traders from Portugal. It was from them that the ware first received the name it now bears, its translucence probably reminding them of the cowne-shell which, from a supposed resemblance to the shape of a young pig, had been termed, in their language, porcellana.

In 1641 the Japanese authorities, having versions to Christiantly effected by the Portuguese missionaries, expelled the settlers from the island, and gave to the Dutch, who could always be trusted to refrain from proselytizing, the exclusive privilege of trading with them. Although the commercial industry of the Hollanders supplied England and the Continent with comparatively large quantities of the Oriental porcelain ware, the finer specimens were eagerly sought after, and, by Queen Anne's time, all classes seem to have become infected by a collecting mania. The high prices they fetched naturally led to many attempts at imitation, which, owing to the difficulty in finding a suntable clay, all resulted in more or less marked failure, nothing but the inferior pate tendre being produced.

The first successful experiment was made, with the kaolin from Auc in the Erzgebirge, by J. F. Bottcher, who had acridentally gained a knowledge of its valuable proporties. In consequence of the discovery, Augustus, Elector of Saxony, was induced to set up a porcelain factory near Dresden, with Bottcher as directon, and, in 1715, the latter succeeded in producing an almost perfect unitation of the hard, white porcelain of the East. The most elaborate precautions were taken to prevent the secret of its manufacture getting abroad, but a very few years later, a heavy bribe extracted it from one of the workmen, and a rival factory was established at Vienna. The works at Berlin, Badon, and other towns in Germany all owed their origin in the same way to the dishonesty of different imployés. The decorations of the earlier German productions were merely mintations, in blue and white, of the Chinese and Japanese; but towards the middle of the 18th century elaborate miniature paintings of flowers, insects, and copies of well-known pictures became fashionable. The best statuettes and groups were made between 1731 and 1795; the finest of these are in plain glazed white, though many are gaily decorated, and the dress richly omamented with fine lace.

Of the factories in England, it is doubtful which has best claim to be termed the oldest; both the Chelsea and the Bow works were established before 2750, and those of Derhy and Worcester very shortly after that date. Though at first confining themselves to ministrons of the simple Oriental models, the English makers soon attained great perfection in the German and French styles, and, after the discovery of the Cornwall knolin in 2755 their best productions ranked, in every respect, very little lover than the masterpieces of Diesden and Sevices

In France, a factory for the soft variety had been set up at St. (lond as early as 1695, and some excellent work was produced there. In 1753, works under royal patronage were set up at Vincennes, and, the eyears later, removed to Sevres. The best productions were sent out during the nine years which followed the purchase of the manifactory by Louis XV. in 1760 At the end of this period the discovery of kaolin near Limoges led to a discontinuance of the manifacture of pate tendre in favour of the more highly valued pate dure. Sevies poncelain, made for use, is usually painted with flowers or figure-subjects on a plant white ground. The purely decorative pieces have panels with pictures on a white ground surrounded by frames of gold scrollwork; the main body of the piece is covered with one deep or brilliant colour.

The following are the thief marks used in the more important European manifactories. The description of the appearance of the various porcelains may be found useful in the detection of forgeries, spurious pieces being unfortunately almost as abundant as genuine specimens.

GERMANY -- (Hard Paste).

DRESDEN.—The porcelain has a cold white, almost bluish, tint. The marks are always in blue.

1709-1712.—The initials of Augustus Rex.

1712-1720 -The wand of Æscu-

1781, with intervals to present time. -- The crossed swords.

1731-1733 - The same, with a dot

1796-1814 (Marcolini period). — The same, with a star between the bandles.

Scratches across the mark show there is some defect in the piece

Sometimes the handles meet, and cause a slight variation in the appearance of the mark.

K.P.M., was painted in italics on pieces intended for royal use.

BRRIIN—The potection closely resembles that of Dresden. In 1761 the manufactory was made a royal establishment. The marks are generally in blue, though a brown sceptre is occasionally found 2752-2762.-- A capital W, with two of the strokes crossing.

1761 onwards.—A sceptre Occa sionally there are two sceptres, crossed to initate the Dresden mark At the present day the porcelain is stamped with the Prussian eagle, encircled by the words KORNIGL, PORRELLAN MARUFACTUR.

CHELSRA.—The porcelain is of a pure white colour, with a tipt almost equal to that of the hard kind. The mark is an anchor, in gold for the best, in red for the second quality.

Bow.—The porcelan is of a fine unlky white In 1750 the works received the name of New Canton; and in 1775 were transferred to Derby. The marks are very various, and often not distinguishable from those of Chelsea. We give two varieties, which generally occur in blue.

DERBY.—The porcelain is very transparent, and of a good white colour. In 1769, the proprietor of the factory, W. Duesbury, purchased the kilns and moulds of the Chelsea works. The marks are in pink, violet, or gold. The earliest mark was an italic D

After 1769, the same, crossed with an anchor (DERBY-CHELSEA).

After x775, the date of the first royal order, a crown with crossed daggers, or a D, or an anchor (CROWN-DERBY)

WORCESTER.—The porcelam is not of a very good colom, but is tolerably transparent.

The cathest mark was a W or a crescent, in blue. Crossed arrows, and imitations of Chinese and Dresden marks are also found.

FRANCE (Soft Paste till 1770)

VINCENNES and SEVRES — The porcelain is remarkable for its creamy softness of colour. The sevres period dates from 1756, when the factory was removed thither from Vincennes.

1745 1753.— Two italic Ls crossed 1753-1756.—The same, with a letter in the centre. The letters A-Z denote the years 1753-77. The Sevres period begins with D

1778-1795.—The period of double letters AA-RR. 1795-1800.—It F., the initials of Republique Française

From 1800 to the present time, the mark has varied with each change of sovereign or government, and is, generally, self-explaining.

The Weights and Measures Act of 1878, super-seding all previous laws, enacts the legal neasures for Great Britain, basing them upon the Standard Yard and the Standard Pound, in the custody of the Standards Department of the Board of Trade.

The YARD and the POUND are the only two mdependent standards for weights and measures. The Gallon, the capacity standard, wet or dry, is based upon the Pound. The Act of 1876 defines the Gallon as the volume of ten standard pounds of distilled water weighed in air against brass weights, both water and air at the tem-perature of 62° Fahrenheit, with the barometer at 30 inches

Electrical Measures.

It is customary to express electrical measurements in terms of the centimetre, the gramme, and the second (C.G.S. units), and the value of the units has been fixed by international agreement The principal units are as follow

As a unit of resistance, the international Ohm, which is based upon the ohm equal to ros units of resistance of the C.G.S. system of electromagnetic units, and is represented by the resistance offered to an unvarying electric current by a column of mercury at the temperature of melting ice, z4 45az grammes in mass, of a constant cross-sectional area, and of a length of 106'3 centimetres.

As a unit of current, the international 228 do. do. = z cord

Ampère, which is one-tenth of the unit of A standard hundred of deals contains 220 pieces

current of the C.G.S. system of electro-magnetic

The Petrograd standard consists of the cubic units and which is represented sufficiently well for practical use by the unvarying current which, when passed through a solution of nitrate of silver in water, in accordance with a certain specification, deposits silver at the rate of o cozzz8 of a gramme per second. As a unit of electro-motive force, the international Volt, which is the E.M.F. that, steadily applied to a conductor whose resistance is one international ohm, will produce a current of one international ampere, and which is represented sufficiently well for practical use by 1777 of the R.M.F. between the poles or electrodes of the voltac cell known as Clark's cell at a temperature of 18° C', and prepared in the manner described in a certain specification

As a unit of quantity, the international Condomb, which is the quantity of electricity transferred by a current of one international ampère in one second.

As a unit of capacity, the international Farad, which is the capacity of a conductor charged to a potential of one international volt by one international coulomb of electricity. The unit international coulomb of electricity generally used in practice is one-millionth part of this, or the microfarad.

As the unit of work, the Joule, which is rounits of work in the (G 8 system, and which is represented sufficiently well for practical use by the energy expended in one second by an international ampère in an international ohm. practice the watt-hour is usually employed represents the work done by such a current in an hour, and equals 3,600 joules.

As the unit of power, the Watt, which is remits of power in the C.S. system, and which is represented sufficiently well for practical use by the work done at the rate of one joule per second 746 watts = 1 horse-power, and the value of a Board of Trade unit (B.C.T. L.) is 1,000 watt-hours, or 3,600,000 joules, or 11/3 house-power hours.

As the unit of induction, the Henry, which is the induction in the circuit when the E.M F induced in this circuit is one international volt. while the inducing current varies at the rate of one international ampère per second

In Scotland, and at certain places in England and Wales at which the ('ran Measures Act, metres, a rod of brickwork is as square metres 12008, has been put into operation, fresh herrings must be sold by the Cran, containing 371/2 imperial gallous, or Quarter Grass of 9½ imperial gallous. In the Isle of Man and in Ireland herrings are sold by the Maz, which contains 5 iong hundreds of 126 each. On the East Coast of England, at places where the above-mentioned Act is not in force, they are sold by the Last, which contains 13,800 fish. They are counted by the Warp, which is 4 fish. 33 Warps = 1 Long Hundred, 13s; 10 Hundred = 1 Thousand, 1,3so; 10 Thousand = 1 Last, 13,800. Cured herrings and in harrels, the canacity of which, in Scotald in harrels, the canacity of which, in Scot imperial gallons, or Quarter Cran of 93s imperial | 8 31 so Indusand = 1 Last, 13,200. Cured nerrings are sold in barrels, the capacity of which, in Scot-land, must always be 26% imperial gallons, or in half-barrels of 13% gallons. Herring barrels or half-barrels must be of corresponding capacity in England and Wales if they are presented for the Government Brand at any place at which the Herring Fishery (Branding) Act, 1923, is in force.

A Quintal of fish (Newfoundland, &c.) is 122 lb.; a barrel of anchovies = 30 lb.; a "box of fish" is about 90 lb.; a Newfoundland "box of fish" contains no lb., 123 lb., or 128 lb., to suit the requirements of the different markets.

Geographical Measures.

The North and South Poles are two points a the opposite extremities of that diameter of the earth round which it revolves. The Equator i a great circle, equally distant from the North and South Poles. For geographical purposes the surface of the earth is divided by circles called the circles of Latitude and Longitude The circles of Latitude are small circles paralle to the Equator. The circles of Longitude are great circles perpendicular to the Equator, and passing through the North and South Poles. These circles are divided into Degrees, Minutes, and Seconds. Degrees of Latitude are and Seconds. Degrees of Latitude are numbered from the Equator to the North and South Poles Degrees of Longitude are numbered from the primary circle of Longitude, or Meridian, which passes through the astronomical observatory of Greenwich (England) The Date or Calendar

A Geographical Mile is the length of one minute of Latitude. If the earth was sphere, every minute of Latitude would be of the same length; but, as it is a spheroid, the length of a minute increases from 6,046 feet at the Equator to 6,208 feet at the Poles. The mean length of the geographical nile is 6.0768 feet.
The Nautical Mile is (strictly speaking) the length of a minute of the meridian, and is thus identical with the geographical nile. In practice, however, it is taken as the Admirally Knot of 6,080 feet, divided into no cables, which are assumed to be not fathoms, or 600 feet.

The Polar diameter of the Earth is 7,800 English miles. The circumference at the Equator is 14,908 miles.

Measures of Heat.

The comparisons in col. s are of Thermometers constructed by Fahrenheit, Celsius and Réaumur. Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, F.E.S. (1865-1725), was born at Daniel, and lived a great part of his life in England and the Netherlands. He was elected in England and the Netherlands. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1794. Anders Calsius (1710-1744), inventor of the Centigrade Thermometer, was born at Upsals, Sweden, and was for many years Professor of Astronomy at the University of Upsals. René Antoine Ferchault de Récumur (1683-1757), was born at La Rochelle, France, and became known as "The Pliny of the XVIIIth Century" on account of his work as a Natural Historian.

Mantical Measures.

6 feet = 1 fathom zoo fathoms = z cable length. to cables = x nautical mile. 60 nautical miles = 1 degree

The assumed length of the cable is 600 feet (=182.87 metres), but it is strictly 606.97 feet (=185 metres). The conventional Nautical (= 185 of metres). The conventional Nautical Mile (the Knot in speed measurements) is no cables, assumed at 6,680 feet (strictly 6,669 7 feet), but the Nautical Mile is strictly the length of a minute of the meridian and differs according to latitude.

Ship Measurement.

The Ton-measurement of cargo was originally the space occupied by 4 hogsheads (= a Tin) of wine = 50 cmbic feet. It is now 40 cmbic feet, which is approximately the bulk of 4 quarters, or a short ton, of wheat.

or a snort ton, of wheat.

The Ton-register, the nuit of capacity of a ship, was originally the space occupied by a Last of xo Quarters of wheat = xoo culie feet. Thus cubic space is the Ton-register used by all maritime nations, too English cubic feet.

Gross tonnage is the sum in cubic feet of all the various enclosed spaces of a vessel, divided by 100. Net tomage is the gross tomage less certain deductions on account of crew spaces, engine room, water ballast, and other spaces not used for passengers or cargo.

Dead-reight tomage, or carrying capacity, is the number of tons (of 2,240 lb.) of cargo that a vessel is capable of carrying when charged to the load water line (y r.)

Displacement tonnage is the number of tons of ea water displaced by a vessel when charged to the load water line (q, r), ie, it is the weight of vessel and contents in tons

Load water-line is the line that would be made round the shell of a vessel when loaded as deep as the minimum freeboard regulations permit.

Draught is the distance in feet from the lowest art of the bottom of a vessel to the actual water line at which the vessel is floating. Thus the loadwater-line marks the greatest, or loaded, draught of a vessel. A vessel without any cargo in her hold or passengers or their luggage aloand is said to be "light ship," or "light," or "in ballast." Free Board is the distance from the main or upper deck to the load-water-line of a vessel. As a general rule the minimum free board provides an amount of reserve buoyancy that will keep a vessel afloat with two compartments holed

Bells and Watches on Board Ship.

Bells.—Time is kept by means of a bell which is struck every half hour. Anyone who, in an effort to terminate his watch prematurely strikes the bell early, is accused of "warming the bell," an expression which has grown to include the doing of anything before the appointed time.

Watches.—For purposes of discipline, and to divide the work fairly, the crew is mustered in two divisions: the Starboard (right side, looking forward) and the Port (left). The day commences at noon, and is thus divided .

This makes seven Watches, enabling the crew to keep them alternately, as the Watch which is on duty in the forenou one day has the afternoon next day, and the men who have only four hours' rest one night have eight hours the next. This is the reason for having Dog Watches, which are made by dividing the hours between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. into two Watches

For TIME AT SEA see p. 78.

Measures of Energy, &c. In Physics the unit of force is the dime, the amount that, acting for one second on one gramme mass, gives it a velocity of one centimetre per second. The Billish mut is the poundal, which in one second gives one pound a velocity of one foot per second. One poundal = 13.825'5 dynes. In Meteorology the unit of atmospheric pressure is the Bar, equal to the pressure of 1,000,000 dynes (1 megadyne) per sq. centimetre The Meteorological Bar is thus 1,000,000 Chemical Bars

Horse power is energy excited at the rate of 550 foot-pounds per second, an alternative unit is the kilowatt (102 kilogram-meters per second)=

737 59 foot poinds per second

Thermal Unit, The British Thermal Unit (B Th U.) is the amount of heat required to raise one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit. The Gas Therm = 100,000 B Th U If U = en ft consumed, H=dcclared heat value of the Company's gas (in B Th. U per cu ft ) P = cost of them in pence, B=total bill in pence-then B=1'×H× P+xoo,ooo, whence equivalent cost (in pence) per 1 000 (II ft =  $B \times 1,000 + V = H \times P + 100$ .

METRIC WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

See also "Double Conversion Tables for Weights and Measures.

In addition to the Imperial standard weights and measures, the use of the French or Metric

and measures, the use of the French of Aletric system of weights and measures was made permissive in Great Britain in 1897.

In the Metric system, the standard of length is the METRE, the standard of weight is the KILOGRAM, and the standard of capacity is the LITRE. Accurate copies of the Metre, Kilogram, and Litre are kept in the custody of the Standards Office of the Board of Trade

THE UNITED STATES.

The weights and measures of the U.S.A. are the same as those of Great Britain, with the following exceptions — Weight —In the short ton of 2,000 lb., the Cental of roo lb takes the place of the Cwt in the long ton. There are Two tons, therefore, the long ton of 2,240 lb, the short ton of 2,000 lb.

Capacity—For gram, the old bushel of 2,250 42 cubic inches; its gallon = 2683 cubic inches; This is commonly called the Winchester bushel, though really of the slightly different London standard

For liquids, the old wine-gallon of $32 cubic inches, five-sixths of the British gallon and = $5,278 grains of water. It is divided into $8,9118 = 7,289.7 grains of water = 76 6 imperial ounces. In medicine the pint is divided into 16 fluid ounces = 455 6 grains of water, and the ounce into 8 fluid drachms of 60 minums

BRITISH DOMINIONS.

Australia and New Zealand .- Same as British Canada .- Same as British but with short ton of 2,000 lb, as in U S A Newfoundland,—Same as Bittish.
Channel Islands.

The weights and measures in use in the Channel Islands are those of Great Britain, the cental of 100 lb. being used as well as the cut. of 112 lb. The Old Island Measures are as follows. Vergée (Normandy derget. Guernsey

The Metric System Old Maltese Measures.

= x'745 lb

The Metric System is compulsory in the case of chemists, and is permissible (along with British weights and measures) in other cases. In addition, the following old Dutch measures are still used.—Liquid Measure. Leaguer—about za8

FOREIGN WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The Metric System has been adopted by the whole of Europe (except Great Britain) and is permissive in all countries.

China.

Egypt.

The Metric System of Weights and Measures and the foot and pound and their multiples, are legal in Egypt. The foot and pound are rarely used and the Metric System is little known except in the large towns.

The Weights and Measures in common use, with their British equivalents, are as follows :-Lenath-

years' purchase, or £1.974

Example, z.—A man, sged 54 m the recent of a pension or annuity of £200 a neur net wishes to commute that for a present payment, interest being reckned at 5 per cent. How much will be recedve? Assers —Looking at the Table of Expectation of Life 50 v, it will be seen that the expectation for age 54 is about 27 years; and

Example z —What is the present value of a Lease having zy years to run of the net annual value of £500, interest being re kented at 4 per cent. Asswess —19 14 The present payment required would therefore be £1,127 years purchase, or £1,914

Role to Example 2.— This method is only approximate. The values of annulities which depend on lives of a given present age when properly calculated according to a given mortality table and a given rate of interest, are always somewhat less than those given by the method used in this example.

REPAYMENT OF PUBLIC LOANS.

SUMS needed annually for the liquidation of a debt (principal and interest) of £xoo, at the stated percentage, in 5 to 30 years. If the loan be for £x,ooo, each annual intalment must be multiplied by  $x_0$ , and so on. Thus, a Municipal Loan of £x,ooo,ooo at 5 per cut, repayable in 30 years, would cost the ratepayers £5x,o3x 5x annually for that period, and would then be extinguished.

REDEMPTION OF CAPITAL

BY ANNUAL PAYMENTS

The following are the rates charged by certain first-class Insurance Companies for "Redemption Policies," to secure the payment of £ too in return for so many annual premiums, c.g., an Insurance | Company will undertake to pay £ too on Midsummer Day, 1951, in return for the payment of £ s.g. ad. on Midsummer Day, 1933, and each year afterwards until 1950, or as payments in all; for £ 1,000 the annual premium would be £ s. 11. St., and so on. This table is of particular interest to purchasers of Lecachold property, as it enables such purchasers to see, at a glance, the amount to be paid out of the meome from the property for a redemption policy to provide the sum originally expended (with a imargin for dilapidations, if necessari), by the time the leavehold interest has expired

THE RULE OF THE ROAD.

The Rule of the Rond is a paradox quite,
For in driving your carriage along,
if you bear to the left you are sure to go right.
If you bear to the right you go wrong.
But in walking the street, the a different case.

But in walking the streets 'tis a different case,
To the right it is right you should steer,
On the left should be left enough of clear space
For the people who wish to walk there.

THE WALKER'S MANIMS (From The Times, April 9, 1930). Two rules the walker must obey If he would reach his home to-day On Roadway always keep the Right On Footpath just the op-posite

G BUCKSTON BROWNE

THE RULE OF THE ROAD AT SEA

Two steamships meeting.
 When both side-lights you see ahead,
 Port your helm, and show your RFD.

- 2 Too steamships passing GREEN to GREEN, or RED to RED, Perfect safety—Go a head '
- 3 The stamships clossing
  If to your stationard RED appear,
  It is your duty to keep clear.
  Fo act as judgment says is proper.—
  To Port—or Starboard—Back, or Stop her.
  But when upon your port is seen
  A Steamer's stationard light of GREEN,
  There's not so much for you to do,
  For GREEN to Port keeps clear of you.
  Both in safety and in doubt,
  Always keep a good look-out;
  In dauger, with no room to turn,
  Ease her—stop her—go safern.

The zgaz Census in Scotland showed longevity both of males and females less than England and Wales at all ages, ranging from 2 54 years and 3 23 years at bith to fractions of a year at later ages, but while at every age women's longevity exceeds that of men in Scotland the excess is much less marked than in England

In Ireland up to 1921, when the last Census was taken of the whole country as one, the longevity of males up to 25 and over 85 years was less than in England, but between ages 25 and 85 was greater than in England. Of females the Irish longevity was consistently less than that of England, except for the ages 55 to 75, when they exceeded the English averages. The Census taken in Northern Ireland in 2926, after 15 years interval, and five vears later than the English figures for males of 55 and over were repeated, though less pronumently. England having improved in the decade of years 2921-2921.
